Fruit of Victory Bitter

WASHINGTON AP -- Democrats are finding that President Johnson's 1964 landslide victory is bearing bitter fruit in the breakdown of party organization in some key areas of the nation.

The voting riches won last year apparently have tended to set many local Democrats squabbling among themselves with the result that the kind of organization which wins state and congressional elections has deteriorated in some sections.

Johnson has given this matter his attention and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey currently is assigned to the task of trying to bring bickering local leaders together into a united front before next year's elections.

Humphrey and his associates don't have to look below the surface to know that there are deep-seated party organization troubles in California, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and New York.

What is especially bad news to the Democrats is that all of these states, except Illinois, are electing governors next year. There is general belief among administration strategists that the Republicans will give campaign priority to trying to win governorships as the quickest route to a national comeback.

Syngman Rhee Dies

HONOLULU AP -- Syngman Rhee, a fierce, old Korean patriot whose greatest dream and last wish eluded him, died at Maunalani Hospital in Honolulu today of a stroke.

He was 90, in failing health for at least three years.

The former South Korean president's last wish was "to go home and die," but increasing debility prevented his return.

The founder of the Korean Republic was admitted to Queen's Hospital a month ago today after he began bleeding internally. His condition improved and he was sent back to the nursing home.

Doctors said they had an hour's indication that death was near, giving them time to summon his Austrian-born wife, Francesca, 65, and his adopted son, Rhee In-soo.

Unfulfilled was his life's ambition and dream--unification of Korea as a republic. The mountainous peninsula on Asia's east coast still is divided along the truce line where the bloody Korean War was halted in 1953.

The funeral will be held at the Korean Christian Church of Honolulu, center of worship for much of Honolulu's small Korean community.

Wilbert Choy, who heads a committee of Korean Community officials handling the services, said Rhee will be buried in Seoul, Korea.

On June 21 Rhee was removed from Korean President Chung Hee Park's political purge list. However, Rhee had been invited back to his homeland before but declining health prevented it.

The former "Tiger of Korea" was tamed by age. Once a driving chief executive who defied Communism and the United Nations, he became a homesick and tired old man.

A nurse said Rhee was kept alive by a dwindling hope of going home to die.

This hope seemed to be the only strength he had left. His health, his stamina and the power he once wielded faded when student riots toppled him from the presidency.

Rhee was the Korean republic's first president and served in the job 12 years. He had just been re-elected to a fourth term when his government was overthrown. Charges of ballot box stuffing, strongarm influence and trickery were hurled at the white-haired president.

He fled the country after protests erupted into violence.

Police Nab Wanted Man

Policemen Leonard Campbell and Larry Sellers took Thomas Lawler into custody Saturday night who was wanted in Butler County for car theft.

They caught Lawler as he was trying to get gas and tires from the Holiday Phillip 66 Service Station on a credit card police charged had been out of date since 1963.

Lawler is wanted in Butler County for the theft of a 1963 Chevrolet from Clarks Garage in Poplar Bluff. He is accused of renting the car from them and of failing to return it July 3.

When Lawler was arrested he was driving a 1965 white Mercury. Officers accused him of taking the license plate from the rented automobile and placing them on the Mercury. He had borrowed the Mercury from a friend.

He was put in jail at Poplar Bluff.

Try to Agree On Poverty Plan

KENNETT -- Federal and state officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity, administering the nation's war on poverty program, are in the Bootheel seeking to reach an accord on methods to administer local projects of the national program.

OEO officials, two of them from Washington, were in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid Counties seeking a way to administer county programs through the five-county area development corporation, which was organized earlier this Spring.

Conferring here with officials of the Dunklin County Economic Opportunity Association, Inc., the county's war on poverty organization, were Michael Moore and James Tice, both of the OEO office in Washington; Wayne Thomas, OEO director from the University of Missouri; and John Rogers, a special OEO assistant to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

OEO officials, discussing the delay of Dunklin County's proposed war on poverty projects, said a change in policy in Washington was responsible for the proposed shift from county to area administration. They said such a transfer of authority would result in lower administration costs for OEO projects in this area.

Dunklin County's "war on poverty" officials, including Carl Jones of Caruth, local OEO board chairman, agreed to the shift in authority. Pemiscot County OEO officials have also agreed to the proposed shift.

Other counties involved in the area OEO program include New Madrid, Scott and Mississippi Counties. The area board is headed by Holcomb School Supt. James Dement.

Still another reason for delays in funding of Bootheel OEO projects, the officials explained here was that original fund requests were for a five-month shifted the funding period from five months to 12 months. OEO officials said to 12 months. OEO officials said the Bootheel's county projects would be changed to include funding for a full year.

If New Madrid, Scott and Mississippi County OEO boards agree to the shift in authority to the area board, officials indicated that funding of projects could begin very quickly. Failure of the counties to agree on area administration could create an indefinite delay, they indicated after meeting here with Dunklin County's OEO board.

Attending the conference with OEO officials were Evan Burge and Clinton Pope of Malden, S. J. Deken, Jack Lincoln and Jane Michel of Campbell, Carl Jones of Caruth, James Dement of Holcomb, Carl Gum of Clarkton, John James and Larney McNear, Jr., of near Steele, and Dr. Marvin Dobbs, Dunklin County Extension Agent.

Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes was expected to make an aerial inspection tour of head start projects today, but due to weather conditions in Jefferson City the inspection was delayed.

No Viet Nam Call for Guard In Sikeston

Men in the Sikeston-Portageville National Guard company have not been called into active service in Viet Nam.

The split battalion has not received any word concerning mobilization.

The Associated Press has reported that the Army submitted a tentative estimate that it would need 120,000 guardsmen and reservists in Viet Nam.

The estimates were for planning purposes. First would come the need for units of a particular type -- combat units or infantry, armor, or artillery, or support units, such as engineer, signal and quartermaster.

The Sikeston - Portageville Guard Unit is the second battalion of the mechanized 140th infantry.

Byron Caldwell, administrative technician, said that the battalion is one of the particular types believed to be needed by the Army.

If National Guard unit here is called up, it would not necessarily be sent to Viet Nam. It might replace units previously held in reserve at United States bases or it might train recruits.

Three Caught Stealing Melons

Three Negro youths were caught stealing watermelons from the farm of A. C. James yesterday afternoon. They are Tommy Richards, Earl Howard and Jewell Marshall, all of Sikeston.

James charged that "the trio pulled their car up to a stop on the other end of the field while we were working. By the time I had run down to them they had gotten into the car and had started trying to lock the doors.

"They started to take off and I raised my shotgun up to the windshield and two of them hit the backseat of the car."

The trio was held by police and will be charged with stealing goods valued at less than $50. Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick said. The maximum sentence, he said, is a $1,000 fine and a year's jail sentence.

Disneyland Fetes 10th Anniversary

ANAHEIM, Calif. AP -- Walt Disney celebrated the 10th anniversary of Disneyland by giving his $52 million pleasure park a new star; Abraham Lincoln.

The life-like Lincoln, an electronic marvel created by Disney's wizards, drew warm applause Sunday. It is a more advanced model than the one that has attracted 4 million visitors at the Illinois state pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

This Lincoln stands, gestures with 48 movements and delivers (with the voice of actor Royal Dano) a compilation of the 16th president's utterances on liberty. The face and head, modeled after a life mask, combine 17 different movements.

At opening ceremonies Sunday, Disney explained that the attraction was created on a crash program occasioned by a studio visit of Robert Moses, president of the New York fair.

Sunday's anniversary contrasted with Disneyland's opening exactly 10 years ago, when some termed the $17 million investment in the midst of orange groves "Walt's Folly."

Disney, who borrowed on his own life insurance to open the park, was to have the last laugh. Disneyland grew from 22 to 48 large scale attractions, and attendance climbed to 6 million yearly.

Space Flight Going Well

MOSCOW AP -- The new unmanned Soviet space traveler was reported functioning perfectly today in its flight to orbit around the sun. Its ultimate destination was still a mystery.

U. S. experts tended to rule out Mars as a target, saying that planet is no longer in a favorable position for another probe from earth.

By 4 a.m. the official Tass news agency reported, the space craft was 140,430 miles from earth. Tass said further radio communications with the satellite "will be carried out in accordance with the program."

Billions Before House

WASHINGTON (AP) —A $1.9-billion antipoverty measure and a $1-billion military pay raise bill share the voting spotlight in Congress this week.

Both are on the House docket.

The military bill, twice as big as President Johnson requested, was expected to sail through the House with little opposition today. It has not been considered by the Senate, which may yield to administration pressure to whittle it down.

For the antipoverty bill, a broadening and continuation of a problem started last year to help the nation's poor, the outlook is not so bright. Republicans have assailed the measure as a political project designed to woo the votes of the needy.

The bill is scheduled to start its run through the House Tuesday, with administration leaders predicting passage Wednesday or Thursday. It has not been considered by the Senate.

Believe Life On Mars

PASADENA, Calif. AP -- Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory settled down today to an exhaustive study of Mariner 4's photographs of Mars, coming in at a rate of one every 10 hours, in a search for some hint of life.

Laboratory director William H. Pickering believes some sort of life exists on Mars and the agency for which he works, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, has plans for spending hundreds of millions of dollars to find it.

No evidence of life showed up in the first three photographs' released last week. They outlined a desert-like area similar to the broad plains on earth's lifeless moon.

Before any more are released, all of the possible 21 photographs taken as Mariner 4 flew past Mars Wednesday are going to be carefully analyzed.

Transmitted across 134 million miles of space, they contain many "glitches," an engineering term for electronic errors and static. They also show several markings scientists doubt actually exist on Mars. A likelier explanation, they say, would be some fault in the camera and radio system.

West Plains Girl Wins

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A 20-year-old blue-eyed beauty from West Plains will represent Missouri at the Miss America pageant in September at Atlantic City, N.J.

Miss Lesley Fleenor was crowned Miss Missouri Saturday night at the climax of the state pageant here.

The contest was not a new experience for Miss Fleenor, who will be a junior at Springfield State this fall. She was second runner-up last year when she represented Springfield.

Miss Fleenor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Fleenor of West Plains, is 5-foot-4, weighs 105 pounds and has light brown hair and olive complexion. Her measurements are 35-22-35.

She is a member of the Springfield State Tent Theater, where her father is musical director. Her talent selection for the Miss Missouri pageant was "Cornet Man" from the musical "Funny Girl." She said she plans to use the same selection for the Miss America contest.

As Miss Missouri, Miss Fleenor received scholarships totaling $1,300 and other awards.

First runner-up was Miss Columbia, Donna Lynn Fogle, 18, a sophomore at Missouri University. Miss Marion County, Jane Carolyn Christian, 19, of Hannibal, was second runner up; Miss University of Missouri, Sharon Lorch, 19, St. Louis third runner up, and Miss Kansas City, Barbara Gilbertson, 18, was fourth.

Enthusiasm High At Scout Roundup

FARRAGUT, Idaho AP--Only three things seemed uncontrollable as the 1965 Girl Scout Senior Roundup entered its fifth day today: The wind, the sun and the enthusiasm of 9,000 teen-age girls.

About 200 military policemen and Idaho State Police tightened already tight security around the 5,000-acre camp over the weekend, when 11,398 tourists poured in, 7,297 of them Sunday.

But directors of the roundup reported all was running smoothly.

Break Glass, Rob Stores

Two liquor stores were broken into Sunday by thieves who entered by breaking into the fronts of the buildings.

One was the Lon Nall Liquor Store, north of the city limits on highway 61. The other was the Baugher Liquor Store on East Malone.

Nall had the heavier loss. A brick was tossed through the front door of the Baugher establishment between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. Sunday. Six fifths of liquor was taken.

The drive-in window on the east side of the building was shattered.

Police held one man in the investigation.

Nall's loss has not been determined but the thieves there had expensive tastes.

Missing are the contents of two money sacks, one containing $110 and the other an undetermined amount in coins believed to have been equally as large. A large quantity of liquor is missing.

How many bottles of liquor were taken, mostly fifths, will not be determined until an inventory is taken. The shelves disclose the best brands were taken. Also taken was a Motorala TV set. The loss was partially insured.

Adlai E. Stevenson Goes To His Final Rest

BLOOMINGTON, Il. (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson goes to his final rest today.

A double farewell was arranged by his old hometown — a community memorial service for 8,000 in the Horton Fieldhouse of Illinois State University followed by funeral rites in the Unitarian church.

Invitations to the church service went to President and Mrs. Johnson, Vice President and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey, Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren and others for a ceremony limited by the 200-person capacity to the family and close friends and officials.

Police blocked off streets along the route from the church to 112-year-old Evergreen Memorial Cemetery.

The grave was prepared there in a corner of the family plot. The tranquil glade is marked by a tall, square-cut monument that bears the name of four members of the family, topped by that of Adlai Ewing Stevenson, vice president of the United States in the second administration of President Grover Cleveland.

He was the grandfather of Adlai E. Stevenson, who governed Illinois, ran losing races for the presidency on the Democratic ticket in 1952 and 1956 and served as ambassador to the United Nations until a heart attack killed him Wednesday in London.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Monday, July 19 Henry Wadsworth Longfellow renews his poetic license.

* * *

There are many advantages in living in a small city.

Sikeston has every reason to be proud of its position as such a city, which cannot be described as metropolitan.

Many of the community's young people want to return to Sikeston to live after they complete their college education, their military service or after working in a larger city for awhile.

That isn't true of every small city.

Sikeston has friendly people, good recreational facilities, well maintained residences, fine churches, good medical services and an excellent hospital, diversified work opportunities and many other assets, not the least of which is a fine public school system.

It is easier to shop in a small city. The resident doesn't have to drive or walk miles to visit a hardware store, a grocery store and a drug store. There are centrally located shopping facilities.

There is no need to drive miles every day to and from work.

The living pace is more relaxed.

A small city is a better place to rear a family. It is a safer place in which to live.

Urban centers have graver crime and other social problems. Life is more impersonal and living problems are more complex.

Yet why do so many small city people, who by choice live in them, spend so much time condemning them.

"Just small town cops," says Joe of the police department.

"Just a small town (or hick) newspaper," says George.

"Just a country store," says John.

That's what Joe, George and John, all small town men themselves say. -- Maybe hicks, too.

If they like it here why do they condemn and belittle small city institutions?

Why do they as small city residents feel that they are superior to the rest of the community?

We don't get it.

ADVERTISING KEEPS
YOUR COMMUNITY ALIVE

The local retailer can be a major force in the increase in the wealth and welfare of his community.

In fact, to be successful in modern business, the retailer necessarily becomes a primary factor in community progress. A suburban retail association lists some of the merchant's contributions as follows:

1. "Sales efficiency. To stay in business the merchant must continuously seek more effective methods of distribution. This leads to cheaper prices for everyone.

2. "Increased motivation. Retail advertising is the most important factor in the immediate purchase of new products which reduce labor and make living more pleasant and healthful.

3. "Creation of trade center. A community is unified by its trading center. Take away the progressive stores and the citizens focus their interests and spend their money at more distant centers.

4. "Promotion of stronger institutions. The merchant knows what good schools, stable government, and recreational and cultural facilities affect his own business, because happy, informed and active people are his best customers."

Retail advertising which is the best mirror of the nature of a trading center, then, does more than sells goods from day to day.

Advertising of good merchants is the repository of stimuli which keeps a community alive.

Purchases of fuel, materials and supplies by the U. This does not include the record spending of $1,417,000,000 by the railroads for capital equipment and improvements. Another $300 million in allied firms' purchases of rolling stock brought to nearly $3.2 billion railroading's overall contribution to the national economy.

When a judge is too familiar with the background of a case he calls in another judge or transfers the case. Objectivity has an important bearing on the administration of justice and every responsible judge acts to prevent any possible conflict of interest from arising in his court.

The same type of thinking should apply to the entire legal process beginning with the man placed under arrest.

The blood of Carl E. Norman, 21, is on the hands of the top administrator of the Los Angeles police department and not the tormented police lieutenant, Thomas E. O'Neal, who pumped three bullets into him, wounding him seriously.

The brooding O'Neal shot the man because he believed Norman was one of a gang of young ruffians who raped his daughter. The young man was held for suspicion of possession of marijuana but subsequently was exonerated of any part of the attack on the girl.

No peace officer, regardless of his calm outward appearance, normal good judgment or his good record, should be given any responsibility for a prisoner suspected of a crime against him or his family. He should be removed from the temptation to heap verbal abuse or attack such a prisoner or prisoners.

The crime committed against this police officer's daughter was a revolting and despicable one and Lieutenant O'Neal's superiors should have known that he might attempt to take the law into his own hands. They are guilty of negligence in the failure to give Norman the protection to which any citizen is entitled.

They have the obligation of course to do everything possible to bring the rapists to justice, but that doesn't excuse their failure to protect the wounded prisoner and the harassed police lieutenant. The officer has been suspended without pay at a time when he needs the money for the medical bills of his emotionally destraught daughter.

It is the Chief of Police who should be suspended and not Lieutenant O'Neal.

That's The Way The Ball Bounces

The doctors admit that "as of now, we can't cure colds," and add, "anyone who tells you he can, deserves at best considerable suspicion."

Such is the word of the American Medical Association on the subject of "the common cold," which says that while most people know it can't be cured, "we still waste a lot of time and money on pills and nostrums and treatments -- all in the faint hope that maybe this time something will help." The AMA also takes a dim view of vaccines for cold prevention, declaring that it is "unlikely that a vaccine will help much."

Grandma had the right idea, if you ask the AMA. "If you get a cold," it advises, "stay home in bed, Keep warm. Gargle to ease a sore throat. Take aspirin for the discomfort. None of this will cure the cold, but it will make you feel somewhat more comfortable while your body's natural defense mechanisms are building up enough steam to overcome the cold virus."

But don't think the medicos are giving up. Research goes on to find the cause and "possible cure" for colds and the AMA expresses the hope that: "Perhaps the answers may be found some day."

We may be sure they will let us know when that happens!

Having wandered helplessly into a blinding snowstorm, Sam, a notorious drinker, was greatly relieved to see a sturdy Saint Bernard dog bounding toward him with a keg of brandy strapped to his collar.

"At last," cried Sam, "man's best friend--and a great big dog, too!"

HELP WANTED
(but no takers)

A company which buys hundreds of thousands of hickory billets (split much like stove wood) sent buyers into a mountain state. There was plenty of hickory available, but no one would take the trouble to split it. It takes little or no skill, it isn't hard work, it pays well. But no one wanted the job; relief is too easy. As the buyers said, after spending weeks trying to hire workers, "Rocking seems to beat working."

All unemployment of course is hurtful, and except for the handicapped, IT IS NEEDLESS. If every man and woman out of work would take any job (and not hold out for the work he likes best, but ANY job) and then produce in it efficiently, he would bring costs down, and many more people would soon buy so many more things that more and more jobs would be required.

JUVENILE MOBS

The Fourth of July weekend this year, which in a more constructive time would have been devoted chiefly to the celebration of our national independence, brought with it a grim tale of rioting and looting by juvenile mobs in once-peaceful resorts all over America.

Despite the strange attempts of many commentators to brush this off as nothing new, or nothing to be alarmed about, in fact it deserves our deepest concern. It is true that rioting and looting, even by young people, are not new in history. Undoubtedly they were common, as one "reassuring" voice has said, in medieval Germany. But until recently they have not been common in America.

Little towns on the Great Lakes, on the seashore, or on the lovely wooded lakes of northern New England which in normal times never knew mass violence, were torn and gutted by young vandals screaming for thrills. Hundreds were injured and millions of dollars' worth of damage done.

Physical injuries heal and property damage can be repaired. But the injuries of character and the spirit, inflicted on themselves and on their companions by the desperate and confused youths who inspired these riots, may prove incurable.

These young people are not deeply evil. They are striking out blindly against a world and a country which seems to them to have given them no moral standards to live by and no purpose in life. By their acts they condemn all who taught them, by work or implication, that there is no real difference between right and wrong.

That is the void in their lives which we must fill. HLB.

Top Crime Fighter Charges Underworld Syndicates Destroy Civil Rights of the Public

For more than four years one man actively directed a daily battle against the vast networks of the criminal syndicates. This was the task of Herbert J. Miller, until recently assistant attorney general of the U. S. in charge of the Criminal Division of the Justice Dept. Under him was the organized crime and rackets section. I asked him whether there really was a chance of ever cracking the Mafia-type underworld. Here is his reply:

By Herbert J. Miller

Washington, D. C.: -- We can assume that the most sacred duty of government is to guarantee to those who comprise it those rights which are the foundation of a free society. Freedom of worship, freedom of speech and the freedom to vote one's choice in an honest election are considered by most to be the bedrock upon which this republic is bottomed.

Two additional rights, however, which are just as basic and which are in daily conflict, are first, the right to be free from governmental oppression and, secondly, the right of a citizen to governmental protection from the depredations of the lawless against his person and property. Every reasonable precaution must be taken in the interest of both of these basic rights to assure that neither is unduly or unfairly subordinated.

If this balance is not achieved, the innocent will suffer and the citizens of this country will live the antithesis of freedom and liberty.

If a latter day Peter Zenger faces incarceration because his printed opinion was circulated for all to read to the discomfiture and rage of government hierarchy, we have lost part of the heritage that the founders of this government sought to guarantee to all of us. If one of us is imprisoned on charges fostered by a governmental official who finds it politically expedient to remove an individual from a position in which he can criticize the government, we have no different result.

The very thought of such governmental interference causes a visceral reaction of antagonism and outrage--as well it should, for this is our very heritage that is being subverted. This revulsion from these acts is primarily caused by the fact that they are actions by the government or, more properly, the acts of individuals cloaked with governmental power. These acts, in other words, make it "an unfair fight."

But, how do most people react when the same type of depredaton and deprivation of rights is visited upon a citizen by a single thug or a group of individual criminals acting in concert rather than by the government?

The reaction is one of instant condemnation and almost immediate concern with other matters. Why is it that this same deprivation of rights can be accomplished by the criminal underworld, and the average person upon hearing even the most gruesome facts has but a fleeting sense of anger? His anger is shortly followed by a sense of relief that he was not the victim.

What makes this even more puzzling is that, in a large measure, it was a governmental omission that permitted this act to take place against an innocent victim. Of course, the government can only use the tools at its disposal in combatting crime.

The real tragedy is that the rights which surround the accused are so impenetrable that the accused is often permitted to roam the streets and commit further crimes. Innocent persons suffer as a result. The government, instead of vigorously protecting the rights of its citizens, thus permits them to be trampled.

In one area of criminality, organized crime, the protective rights surrounding the individual demonstrably and seriously handicap law enforcement. Since Joe Valachi publicly broke with his organization, the Cosa Nostra, most people will concede the existence of that organization. It is an organization which is dedicated to criminal conduct, to killings, extortions and robberies, in order that its members may live an affluent life on the work product of law abiding citizens. But the dismal part of the Valachi revelations is that the organization has existed and operated in this country for many years, and still is very much alive.

The existence of a secret criminal organization for such a long period of time can be explained either in terms of the inefficiency of law enforcement or that the individual rights of the members of this criminal conspiracy effectively protect and permit the continuation of the organization.

While this is admittedly an oversimplification, the glaring fact remains that despite all of the efforts of local police forces, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, the Internal Revenue Service and the many other investigative agencies of the Federal Government, the organization continues to operate.

The continuation of this criminal conspiracy is a forceful argument that law enforcement operating under present rules, decisions and statutes is unable to eradicate the problem. The glib answer, that it is better that a hundred go free rather than that one innocent person be convicted, solves nothing. An equally glib retort is that the freeing of a guilty person can and has given the freed defendant the opportunity to murder an innocent person.

What is the result? The government, by freeing the guilty, has permitted the defendant to not merely imprison but take the life of an innocent person. The continued operation of this criminal syndicate is a tacit admission that the rights of the victims of that organization have been subordinated to the rights of those accused of committing the crime. The very existence of the organization would seem to prove that much.

But much can be done to restore the balance of rights so that officers of the law will be in a position to fulfill their prime duty -- protection of the innocent. One is for Congress to enact statutes recently proposed by the Department of Justice that will enable the prosecutor to give immunity from prosecution to those who give evidence of a crime. Refusal to testify after being given immunity could result in a prison term.

It is only with immunity statutes that the underlings of the Cosa Nostra can be compelled to testify concerning this criminal conduct of the higher-ups in the syndicate. Now such individuals invoke their right not to testify under the Fifth Amendment -- which they have a right to do. But once given immunity from prosecution, those Fifth Amendment rights cannot be used as a basis for not testifying.

Only with this additional legislation can law enforcement have any real hope of breaking the solid code of silence which cloaks criminal conduct of the most brutal and sadistic nature. Surely government must take this minimal step to protect future innocent victims of criminal greed. Only with additional legislation can this blight on our democracy be eliminated.

Judge Learned Hand once said, "The protection of the individual from oppression and abuse by the police and other enforcing officers is indeed a major interest in a free society; but so is the effective prosecution of crime, an interest which at times seems to be forgotten."

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

From the air South Viet Nam looks in many places like a vast cemetery.

When you first fly over the countryside, you notice what at first look like bomb craters or old abandoned wells.

But no one could have dropped that many bombs or abandoned that many wells. What you are seeing are the tombs of some of Asia's unnumbered dead.

Tombs outnumber the rice paddies, where grow in vivid green the white grains that feed the country's living millions.

The tombs cluster by the hundreds in every patch of sandy outworn soil. In smaller numbers, they also stud the fertile rice paddies, as if the clamorous dead were draining the sustenance of the living.

Some of the tombs are new and handsome in gold and blue colors. But most are gray and old and lichen-encrusted, and the dead within them as forgotten as the faded, fallen leaves of a flame tree.

The poet Sara Teasdale wrote of "children's faces looking up, holding wonder like cup."

It is the faces of Vietnamese children that give most encouragement to Americans here. They are so bright-eyed, enthusiastic, and eager to accept change.

In the eyes of the middle-aged and elderly, you are depressed to see sometimes a veiled animosity or at best a dull passivity. Often you have the feeling they don't really see you at all — they are either looking through you or around you, as if you were not there at all.

But the children and the youths see you. They are interested in Americans and this is cheering, even though you may have to face up to the fact that what they are looking for may more often be a cigarette than help to political freedom.

The hardest thing for Americans to get used to over here is Vietnamese money. It is by far the shabbiest paper currency on earth, particularly in small denominations.

The largest bill is the 500-piastre note. This is worth about $7, and they are invariably clean and crisp and neat.

The average Vietnamese worker, who earns from less than 60 up to 85 piastres a day, rarely gets his hands on one. The 100- and 200-piastre notes are usually in pretty good shape, too.

The five, 10- and 20-piastre notes — and particularly the fives — are the financial language of the poor. The five-piastre note is so dirty, frayed, unsanitary and pawed over that you feel you may be contracting a nameless disease every time you accept one in change.

The situation in South Viet Nam is bewildering in many ways to thousands of the American military men stationed here. The customs of the people are so different, the conduct of the war itself is so different, from anything they have known before.

But there is also a great determination on the part of most to see this thing through.

I think the best expression of both this bewilderment and determination that I have heard was made by Capt. James W. Haerer, 33, a fighter pilot from Tampa, Fla.

During a flight we made together on a supply plane to a mountain fort, Haerer said:

"You don't always know what you're fighting over here —but you know it has to be fought."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- One of the most interesting relationships in the life of Adlai Stevenson was that with President Johnson. One an intellectual, the other a politician, they were closer than Adlai was with John F. Kennedy.

This was not always the case. In 1956, Stevenson was on much closer terms with the young Harvard - trained Senator than with Lyndon Johnson, Estes Kefauver or any of the big wheels of the Democratic party. Personally, he would have preferred Kennedy to Kefauver as his running-mate.

In 1956, furthermore, he had not been getting along at all well with Johnson, then Senate Majority Leader and a man who resented the Advisory Committee of the Democratic party, a group which included Stevenson, Kefauver, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Gov. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut.

Johnson and his friend, Speaker San Rayburn, both of Texas, boycotted the committee meetings and there was friction between Stevenson, the titular leader of the Democratic party, and Johnson, the dominating Democrat of the Senate.

SECRET ALLIANCE

But in 1960 an unusual political alliance, little known to the public, drew them together. It was an alliance to block the nomination of John F. Kennedy.

It was agreed that Stevenson would stay in the nomination race, not with the hope of winning, but in order to prevent Kennedy from winning on the first ballot.

Johnson had been a slow starter, had not been able to campaign because of his Senate duties. His only hope was a deadlock after which the convention would turn to him. Stevenson agreed to use his delegates to that end. Kennedy repeatedly asked him to withdraw and got quite irritated when he refused.

The strategy failed and, when Kennedy got the nomination, no one was more vigorous in campaigning for him than Adlai Stevenson.

But Adlai once told me that he suspected Kennedy resented his alliance with Lyndon and that this was one reason why he never became Secretary of State.

However, the Los Angeles alliance brought Stevenson, the intellectual, and Johnson, the practical politician, much closer together. And after Johnson assumed the presidency, they became even closer. Johnson invited Stevenson to every luncheon or dinner pertaining to foreign affairs, frequently phoned him in New York for advice.

I talked to Adlai in New York shortly after American troops landed in the Dominican Republic; And while he had always been opposed to intervention he confessed that, had he been in the President's shoes, his decision might have been similar.

He had come to Washington to attend a White House strategy meeting on Viet Nam and was sitting in the little green room just off the President's main office when the final message came through from Ambassador Tapley Bennett in Santo Domingo requesting troops.

Johnson placed a sheaf of telegrams in Adlai's hands. It would have taken 30 minutes to read them. Meanwhile the Ambassador was phoning Washington from under his desk with bullets whizzing through Embassy windows. Johnson gave the order to land troops.

Adlai was not happy about Dominican intervention, but never said so. He believed in playing on the Johnson team.

Thus there continued a genuine friendship between two strong men of opposite backgrounds and opposite personalities. When the President got the news of Adlai's death, he had trouble keeping back the tears.

JAPANESE AND SHRINERS

The joint meetings between Japanese and American Cabinet members were frank, healthy and a tribute to the ability of two one-time enemies to become friends. But there was one thing the visiting Japanese officials just couldn't understand -- the Shriners.

When the Japanese arrived at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington the Shriners' convention was just convening.

And the fastidious gentlemen from Tokyo, looking prim and proper, gaped with amazement at the men dressed in Arab fezzes, baggy pants and in one case riding a camel, who dominated the hotel lobby.

The highest officers in the Japanese government, usually the height of punctuality, were late for appointments because they could not take their eyes off this new breed of Americans.

They watched them pinch ladies, light matches and pretend to set fire to hotel carpets, and otherwise relax as only homo Americanus can when away from home.

The Japanese Cabinet members didn't ask questions. But from the look on their faces they must have wondered whether a new type of American had been lurking undiscovered on the Western Hemisphere during the years.

Note: A group of Africans was observing the Shriner Parade, dressed in their gaudy native garb. Evidently puzzled by the Shriner costumes, one of them turned to a bystander and asked: "Is Johnson still President?"

JAPANESE BOO-BOO

At the White House luncheon for the Japanese Cabinet there occurred such a boo-boo as seldom happens at state functions.

News of Adlai Stevenson's death came while the luncheon was in progress. President Johnson set aside his prepared speech and paid tribute to Stevenson. And Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shiina did the same.

But when the interpreter translated Shiina's speech, the English version put the Foreign Minister in the position of paying tribute to "The Late" Henry Cabot Lodge, who, of course, was not dead but who was Ambassador to the U. N. under Eisenhower.

President Johnson did not say a word in correction; Nor did any of the American guests. They figured the error was a slip of the tongue by the interpreter.

Council Has Quarterly Meet

NEW MADRID -- Seven clubs were represented at the quarterly meeting of the New Madrid County Home Economics Extension Council in the city hall at New Madrid, Tuesday afternoon, July 6. Council president, Mrs. Nelson Lumsden, presided and reported that Miss Rebecca Nistendirk, home agent, was in a Cape Girardeau hospital, but expected to be released soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buckles of Sikeston were to have given a demonstration of making pictures with glass, but Mr. Buckles was ill and unable to come. Instead, his brother, Mr. Eugene Buckles, gave a most interesting and informative talk on his work in hybridizing iris. He has developed several outstanding varieties which he has named and which will be available to gardeners.

Before raw varieties of flowers can be advertized as "all American" they must be tested in all areas of the country. Mr. Buckles tests new varieties of roses and chrysanthemums for this area.

He illustrated his talk with beautiful colored slides of his garden and of specimen flowers, answering questions as he went along.

Starting 18 years ago, when a friend gave him a handful of unnamed rhizomes, Mr. Buckles has gone on to develop a hobby that is creative and will continue to give therapeutic satisfaction throughout the years of his retirement.

The annual fall-get-together of county extension clubs was discussed and Mrs. Lumsden appointed Mrs. W. O. Burnett to get information in regard to an appropriate speaker.

Cards Even Season's Won-Lost Record

Sparkling Champs Slip by Phils 3-1

BY JOE BEAN AND RICHARD SMITH

ST. LOUIS -- It was "take me out to the ball park" here yesterday at Busch Stadium, as the Phillies and the Cardinals scrapped with the umpires--and a player from each squad was given the thumb--blasted three home runs, turned over a couple of neat double plays, and paraded players to the field in a seemingly endless array of relief pitchers and would-be hitters.

The Cards' Dick Groat and the Phils' Cookie Rojas took early showers, and after the dust around home plate and the pitcher's mound cleared--what with erratic Bo Belinsky on the hill--the Cardinals came out on top 3-1.

The win, number 45 for the sixth-place Redbirds, brought them up to .500 — the first time since June 9 — and moved them to within three games on the loss side of fifth-place Philadelphia.

Tracy Stallard, who got the starting nod from manager Red Schoendienst, pitched five-hit baseball before tiring in the eighth and giving way to Hal Woodeshick, but still picked up his seventh win of the season.

Belinsky, now 3-6, took the loss.

With two out, slugging right fielder Johnny Callison wasted no time in the first inning, Stallard's first offering sending to the right field roof.

Lou Brock bounced right back to knot the score at 1-1 in the bottom of the first, slapping Belinsky's first pitch into the flag atop right field at the 354 feet mark for his seventh home run. Dick Groat singled, took third on Gagliano's safety, and raced home on a passed ball.

Tim McCarver, the young Memphis, Tenn., catcher who throws right and bats left, added an insurance run with his eighth homer, bottom of the sixth, a blast that eased its way onto the pavilion roof in right field.

Phils manager Gene Mauch utilized 18 players — of the 25 on the club — in an effort to get a rally started, but in vain. Belinsky was followed to the mound by Burdette, Wagner, and Baldschun.

After the scoring was dispensed with in the first frame, the squads settled down to some good old time baseball, complete with a round of boos for the men in blue.

Dick Groat, leading off in the third, dropped a near-perfect punt down the third base line, but was thrown out — technically and literally. Belinsky's peg to Herrnstein at first caught the Cardinal shortstop by less than a gnat's eyelash, and in Groat's ensuing protest — with first base coach Becker and third base coach Schultz, plus manager Red Schoendienst chiming in — the ump's right thumb flew up and Groat was gone.

Groat threw a few parting remarks toward the field as he paced back and forth in the dugout, and was requested to leave the playing area.

Four innings later, Cookie Rojas — who had moved in from second base to take over the catching chores — exchanged differences of opinion with plate umpire Weyer. The discussion brought Gene Mauch to the plate, but sent him back to the Phils' dugout searching for another catcher to replace the ejected Rojas.

Bo Belinsky, until today owner of a spotless 2-0 record against the Cardinals, was bombed for eight hits, including circuit clouts by Brock and McCarver, walked two intentionally, and hit one batter.

Intent on adding a few more runs to the scoreboard, the Cards loaded the sacks in the bottom of the fourth, but all for naught, as Stallard slapped a rising line drive into the glove of rightfielder Johnny Callison for the third out.

The Phils came close, getting two men on with nobody out in the fourth, but Stallard fanned Richie Allen and Johnson, and then got Herrnstein on a bouncer to second.

In the sixth, Briggs reached third base when Brock, trying to double him up on Rojas' pop fly, threw the ball into the Phils bench. Callison drew a pass, and Richie Allen — the Phils' leading hitter at .323 — bounced into an around-the-horn double play.

In the top of the eighth, pinch-hitter Dick Stuart lifted Tracy Stallard's pitch to left field for the first out, but Briggs outlasted the tiring hurler and drew the fourth Philly walk. Southpaw Hal Woodeshick sauntered in from the left field bullpen, tossed one pitch to Cookie Rojas, and Buchek turned over the inning-ending double play.

Richie Allen walked in the top of the ninth after Callison popped out, but was forced at second by Johnson. Herrnstein bounced out to end the contest.

Fabick Downs Canvas Police Nose Security

Canvas Products battled with Fabick in the first game of the American League double-header. Fabick, the number one team in the league, traveled to the victory with a score of 9-2.

Bye hurled again for Fabick as he posted another triumph giving up just 2 hits--one a double by Ryan and the other a single by Sipult. Both hits were racked in the first.

After the beginning frame of play, the score was even 1-1. Fabick, holding Canvas to just one last run in the second, added one more to their roster also. The game remained tied 2-2 after the second. Inning 3 roused no action from Canvas, but brought 3 hits and 2 runs to Fabick. The fifth inning was the next in action line as Fabick made sure of their win as they scored 5 tallies.

McDowell gave up 7 hits and 9 runs to Fabick as he hurled for Canvas taking the defeat.

Police, in the nightcap of the evening at Farris Field, managed a victory over Security Federal with a 6-5 decision. Police, coming from a 3-0 deficit, managed to capture 5 runs in the fifth and one in the sixth to move up a notch in wins.

Police and Security National ended up the same in hits as each pitcher held the other team to 3.

One hit by Nelson of Security National was the only move toward a rally in the first from either team. Inning two saw a single by Moll of Police as the only step for action. Three in the third started things going as Hicks received a base hit and was driven in. Beck and Overby stepped on the plate for 2 more runs. In the fifth, Police came from behind to take the lead 5-3. In the top of the box, Anderson took a base on an error. Davis singles and Terrell boosted a double to drive both in. The next two batters took walks and both scored. Hicks and Nelson scored for Security in the bottom. Police grabbed the winning run when Jones scored after receiving a base on an error. Security was stumped in the last.

Luber served the ball for the victors. Overby was credited with the loss giving up 6 runs and 3 hits.

SPRING SHOES

"Please, Mr. Salesman, show me shoes,"
In whispers she'll confide,
"Of course a fit, but mainly style,
You see I'm still a bride."
"You understand," continues she.
"New shoes that catch his eyes."
The salesman thought. . . O, winter's gone,
And who is winter wise?
It was his line of work to please

Craig And Vines Rip Homers In National League Action

The National League had a wild Saturday night when the Jaycees and Lewis Furniture went into action in the first game and Legion took on A & B Oil Co. in the second. The Jaycee-Lewis bout, both teams having strong offense and defense, ended up in a 5-4, extra inning, close margin game with the Jaycees on top.

The highlight of the game was a home run by each team. Craig, for his first time at the plate for the Jaycees, gave the ball a ride over the center field scoreboard. Lewis also took home with their defeat a homer over the left field fence by the catcher, Vines. He belted the ball with Schatzley on third.

Boardman, relieving Jones in the sixth, took the win. Johnson was the second of 3 pitchers for Lewis. He was given credit with the loss.

The nightcap between Legion and A & B Oil Co. was a 6 hit ballgame — 3 by each team. Legion took the victory over A & B with a 3-1 margin.

The battle started off in the beginning frame tied, and it remained there until the last inning when Legion decided they better start pounding if they didn't want a tied bout. In that frame, Reynolds started off with a base hit. Shy, Myers, and Runnels received free bases next. Allen, Legion shortstop, and ace hitter for the night, stepped to the plate and rapped Scarbrough for a double driving in 3 runs. In the bottom of that frame, A & B was held to just one hit and one run, their first and last of the contest.

Scarbrough gave aid to Dame and surrendered to the ace pitcher, Howard. Both pitchers gave up 3 hits.

DIPLOMATIC STRATEGY

A former British ambassador to the United States, explaining to some friends that diplomacy consists in the art of covering up, offered a case in point. On a visit at a fine home where the hostess prided herself on her antique furniture, he was careful not to spill anything or mar the furnishings. But one day when he was reading alone before the fire, the slender gilt chair he was sitting on collapsed under him. Quietly and calmly, the ambassador broke the chair into little pieces and fed them to the fire.

His hostess wondered for a long time about what happened to her chair. ---Dan Bennett

I-55 Work Is Progressing

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Construction on Interstate Highway 55 from Benton to Scott City is progressing, but no completion date for the project has been set, W. D. Carney of Sikeston, District 10 engineer, said.

He reported construction of the extension interchange at Scott City will continue throughout the summer. It is expected, the district engineer said, that the interchange will be one of the last parts of the Scott City-Benton section to be competed.

Grading operations on the shoulders of the 10-mile stretch are continuing. Paving was completed months ago. Carney said the shoulder work is nearing completion and grass seeding will be started soon.

Construction also is continuing on another uncompleted section of I-55, from a point east of Sikeston southward 21 miles to New Madrid. When the Scott City-Benton and Sikeston-New Madrid links are completed there will be an unbroken stretch of I-55 from Fruitland to New Madrid, a distance of approximately 50 miles.

The Scott City interchange is sufficiently completed to indicate the pattern it will take when finished.

I-55 runs diagonally from south to north, from the bottom of the picture to the top. Northbound traffic will use the right lane and southbound traffic the left lane.

Viet Cong Counting on Victory Not Negotiation

Editor's Note: This is the third and final article in a series of questions and answers about the war in Viet Nam.

SAIGON (AP) — Here are answers to some of the questions you may have been asking about the war in Viet Nam:

Q. Are there any indications in Saigon that some kind of negotiations might be foreseeable?

A. No. Sources with excellent political contacts in Hanoi say the Hanoi regime is not interested in establishing contacts with Saigon and Washington, much less in holding talks. The Viet Cong has mounted a major monsoon offensive in which the apparent objective is military victory, not negotiation. So far, the Viet Cong has done well, leaving little reason for it to be interested in negotiating anything.

Q. As things stand, could the Viet Cong win a military victory?

A. Not in the sense of being able to push American forces into the sea. American forces standing by outside Viet Nam, and the U.S. 7th Fleet, could presumably prevent the taking of large towns. But in terms of controlling most of South Viet Nam's population, the Viet Cong is likely to make further strides. It is less interested in real estate and cities than in people. Critics of American policies have noted that in the Indochina War the French continued to hold Hanoi and all Viet Nam's major cities until they were finally bled dry in the jungle and forced into what amounted to a political surrender. This appears to be the present Viet Cong strategy.

Q. How long is this likely to go on?

A. U.S. officials say that "the battle has just been joined" and shun predictions. All observers feel there will be dramatic military developments this summer, but few feel this campaign will end the war. Fighting cold go on for years.

Q. How likely is this to lead to World War III?

A. So far, the Soviet Union has participated only slightly in the war. Communist China has sent weapons and equipment to North Viet Nam. No Chinese advisers are known to have joined Viet Cong troops despite occasional rumors to the contrary. No Chinese units are known to have moved into North Viet Nam. The United States has avoided bombing North Vietnamese cities or engaging China in any military way, and American escalation is likely to be kept within sharp limits. Both America and its Asian enemies seem embarked on a local "meatgrinder" war aimed at exhausting the other side. But Peking could change current policies at any time, and no officials in Saigon have ruled out the possibility of World War III.

Q. What is the current American casualty rate?

A. It is approaching 100 killed, wounded and missing a week. This rate is expected to increase sharply as more American go into combat.

Q. Is it true, as U.S. officials say, that this is till a Vietnamese war in which America has only a supporting role?

A. Technically, yes. But without the massive infusions of U.S. troops and aid into Viet Nam, the nation would fall to the Communists in weeks or days. In this sense, South Viet Nam's contribution to its own war is increasingly symbolic, and the real war is American. The Vietnamese casualty rate is still far higher than the American, but this ratio is likely to change radically in the coming months.

Hear Report On School Inspection

CHARLESTON -- The R-1 School District Board of Education held its regular meeting and among other items of business, heard the area supervisor's report on his inspection of the school system.

In other major business the board discussed ways to improve bus transportation services; hired three teachers and released two others; and decided to purchase a lot on which the new carpentry class can build a house.

The area supervisor's report indicated several deficiencies in the R-1 system. One of these, a need for additional buildings so students can be grouped for better instruction, will be taken care of under the building program currently under way, the report noted.

Other items needed, the report said, are special education for the retarded and speech correction education, both at the secondary level; smaller study halls for more effective study; half-time librarians at the Anniston and Lincoln units; and additional college credits by some of the personnel acquired in recent reorganizations.

Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. reported the bus system operation cost $66,750 last year, of which $66,200 will be reimbursed by the state during the coming school year.

Pierce also reported that on the basis of balances July 1 and closed books for the school year ended in May, the revised budget for 1965-66 shows a deficit of only $59,000 instead of the $89,000 predicted during the bond issue campaign in February. The savings resulted from economies due to reorganization with Texas Bend, Thompson Bend and Bertrand, Pierce said.

The question of providing better bus service was tabled for discussion at a special meeting to be called in the near future. Superintendent Pierce was instructed to work out alternative proposals for the board to study and pass upon.

The board voted to hire Charles Telker as a teacher of science in the junior high school; Bill Wills to teach sixth grade; and Carla Jo Wills to teach fourth grade. Richard Reed and John Hunt were released from contracts to take other jobs.

Superintendent Pierce was instructed to prepare a list of local lots and their prices so the board could select a site for the building trades course house, which will be built during the school year by enrollees. Pierce said drawing for the house would be made by the drafting class at the Sikeston area trade school, in which CHS participates, wiring would be done by the electricity class, and carpentry would be done by the local students under the supervision of their instructor.

The only other major item of business was the decision by the board to hold an auction, sometime during the fall at which time some buildings, property and equipment acquired in reorganizations could be disposed of.

The board also decided to have students at Charleston High School to provide their own padlocks for the hall lockers, eliminating the 50 cent key deposit from the fee structure.

Tabled for a future meeting was the question of a legal name for the school district.

Fine Speaks At Kennett

KENNETT -- Lee C. Fine, director of the Missouri State Park system, was guest speaker for the Friday noon meeting of the Kennett Lions Club.

Fine, who was employed by the Missouri State Park Board last January to succeed Joseph Jaeger, Jr. as director, is a native of New Madrid.

He is a graduate of the University of Michigan Forestry School and attended the University of Missouri three years. After leaving college he devoted his working life to outdoor work of the type which he is now doing as superviser of the State Park system.

In June of 1941 he went to work with the Missouri Conservation Commission as a district forester at Sullivan. He also served as forester at Eminence, Camdenton and Ellington. For the five years preceeding 1965 he was assistant state forester in charge of forest fire control, stationed in the Conservation Commission headquarters in Jefferson City.

Fine has stated that "with the help of the State Park Board and the staff of the department I expect to make the State Park system second to none in the United States."

Five Felony Cases Heard By Judge

KENNETT -- During Dunklin County magistrate court proceedings Wednesday Judge Leon McAnally heard five felony cases, two misdemeanor cases and seven traffic ases. Seven other traffic offenders paid their fines and costs to the violation's clerk prior to court day.

Annice Jackson, 50-year-old Malden Negro, was released after posting a $1,500 bond. He was charged with felonious assault in the shooting of G. V. Greer, 34, last Sunday night. Jackson's preliminary hearing was continued to Thursday, July 29.

Faye Dorothy Allen, charged with disposing of child to conceal birth, waived her preliminary hearing and was bound over to Circuit Court. She was released after posting bond of $1,000. The preliminary hearings of three other felony cases were continued to Thursday, July 22, and the men are being held at the county jail for failure to post bond, which was set at $1,000 each. These were Tony Henfling, charged with statutory rape, Glen Owens and Wayne Williams, both charged with passing no funds checks.

Maurice Moore and Roger Cole, charged with possession of liquor by a minor, were both fined $50 each and costs.

The seven traffic cases arraigned before Judge McAnally yesterday and the court judgment was as follows: Ted Crumley, no operator's license $1 fine and costs; Larry Sanders McCoy, (three counts) -- careless and reckless driving, failure to yield right of way and endangering life and property of others, $15 fine and costs; George William Seibert, excessive speed, $5 fine and costs; Ben William Austin, no tail light on trailer, $5 fine and costs; and Peggy Ann Mitchell, no operator's license, $1 fine and costs.

Q—Who was Jesus, son of Sirach?

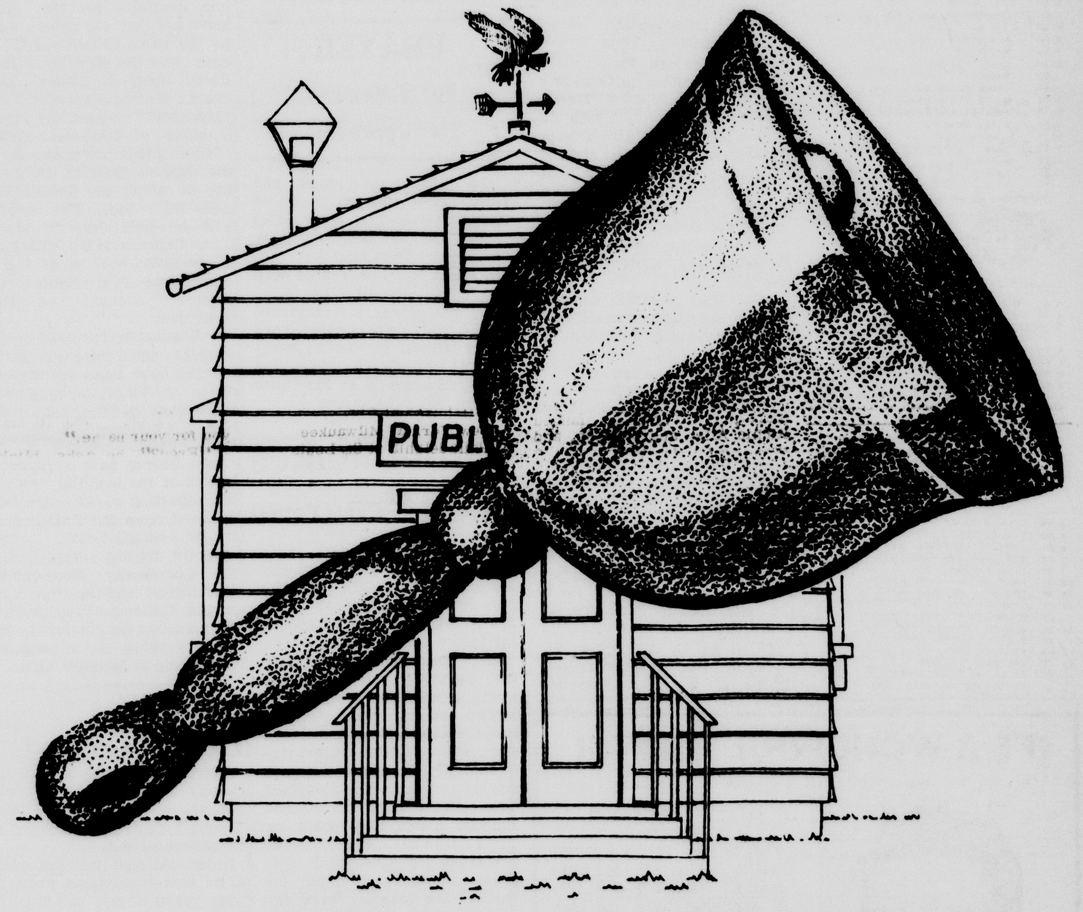

A—He was not related at all to Jesus of Nazareth. He was the writer of the apocryphal work known as "Ecclesiasticus"—not to be confused with the Old Testament book of Ecclesiastes.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

"Be faithful unto death, and I will give you the crown of life." (Revelation 2:10, RSV)

PRAYER: O God, we thank Thee that Thou dost hear us. We come to Thee, for we need Thy power and direction in the way that Thou hast laid out for us. Help us to be conquerors to be faithful to Thee as Jesus was faithful when he lived on the earth. We ask it in His name and for His sake. Amen.

Cotton Makes Good Progress

HAYTI -- Cotton crop made excellent progress in Southeast Missouri. Fields are generally free of weeds and grass. There are isolated reports of spraying for insect control.

Early fields in the South Central region were laid by this week, according to the consumer and marketing service, United States Department of Agriculture. Cotton fruited satisfactorily. Scattered showers and hot weather stimulated plant development. Farmers chopped Johnson grass and weeds in some fields but generally fields are clean. Routine spray programs continued in many localities but insect infestations were minor.

Spot cotton trading decreased from a week earlier. Prices were fairly steady. Demand was fair for middling and lower grades with 1-1/32 inches and longer staple lengths. Farmers sold small-volume cotton loan equities and netted from $1 to $3 per bale.

Domestic mill buying was mostly for prompt shipment. Purchases were confined mostly to fill-in needs. Export demand weakened. Some inquiries were received from European spinners. Sales were small in volume.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: As I type this letter tears are streaming down my cheeks. No, I have not been jilted. It's worse than that. For the fourth time today, the woman whose desk is next to mine has sprayed herself with the world's most sickening perfume. She proudly boasts that she makes the perfume herself by combining three different scents and adding a bit of vanilla extract.

I'm not the only one who suffers. The woman who sits on the other side of me gets nauseated after every spraying. Right now she's green as grass.

The thing that burns me up is that the sprayer went to the supervisor three months ago and asked that cigar smoking be prohibited because it make her sick.

At this moment I'm sneezing and my head is beginning to ache. I'm not a troublemaker, Ann, but I think something should be done. What do you suggest?--VICTIM

Dear Vic: You could dramatize your problem by falling on the floor and calling for an oxygen pump the next time the perfume lady sprays--but I'd like to suggest a more practical and realistic approach. Tell the woman you are allergic to her perfume and if she'd settle for a dab behind her ears and not spray the office you'd appreciate it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school student who will be a senior next fall. Please tell me what I can do to make my last year livable. If I don't get asked for a date before I graduate I'll just die.

I'm not too tall or too fat or ugly. Kids like me--both girls and boys--but my trouble is I'm the pal type, the big sister. During the last month of school three guys asked me who to take to the junior prom. When the fourth one asked I couldn't stand it any longer so I answered in a half-joking way, "What's the matter with ME?" The fellow laughed and said, "You've got to be kidding."

Maybe I got off to a bad start by playing baseball and football with the guys in the neighborhood when I was in grade school. I quit last year when my mother said it was disgraceful. I need your help and I need it now. Please don't fail me.--PLATONIC

Dear Platonic: I'm glad you finally gave up the sand-lot routine. What fellow wants to get romantic with a third baseman?

Start the new school year by inviting one fellow at a time to your house to study--or just to talk. A platonic friendship is often the best springboard for a truly meaningful relationship. Remember that love is friendship that catches fire.

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin considers herself a nonconformist. I've always thought she was plenty far out and just plain brassy. Recently she did something that has the family divided into two camps.

Mary (not her real name) is graduating from nursing school soon. She is also planning to marry in a few months. My invitation to her graduation arrived in the mail yesterday. Attached was a note saying "Stuck for a gift idea? Here's help. Go to the linen department of the such-and-such department sotre and ask for Miss Williams. She has the gift all ready. It is a set of monogrammed towels. The price is $7.98. Thank you in advance."

What is your opinion of this? --ON THE SPOT

Dear On: To use your words I would describe it as "plenty far out and just plain brassy." Ignore the instructions and send whatever you wish.

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Union Accepts Florsheim Bid

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Union workers have accepted a tentative offer from Florsheim Shoe Co. to set up operations at the International Shoe Co. plant here.

Ellis Baker, national representative for Local 125A, United Shoe Workers of America, said the decision came in a unanimous standing vote Thursday evening.

International Shoe plans to end its present men's shoe manufacturing operation in Cape Girardeau.

There reportedly are good chances that Florsheim, a division of International, will begin operations at the plant.

Baker said the vote Thursday night followed four to five months of negotiations with International Shoe officials looking to continuation of manufacturing operations at the plant.

The final decision whether to locate here now rests with Florsheim and International Shoe management, he said.

The local 125A official said the tentative offer accepted by the union members did not concern working conditions or wages.

A New Yorker passing Fulton Fish Market spotted two tubs of live softshell crabs, side by side. One tub had a sign reading, $2.50 a dozen"; the other a sign reading, "$1.50 a dozen." While he watched, a crab pulled himself up laboriously from among his ellows, attained the rim of the tub and climbed into the $2.50-a-dozen receptable. Buried cable:
$10,000,000 in new life insurance for your telephone this year

Put telephone wires underground and you've put them in a safe place. Safe from wind, rain, hot weather, cold weather, stormy weather. Safer from the slow death of ordinary weathering. Safer from man-caused damage, too. All around safer from the kinds of trouble which most often affect the talkability, hearability and dependability of your phone service.
That's why this year Southwestern Bell is spending $10 million burying hundreds of additional miles of telephone cable underground. In effect, buying life insurance for your telephone service.
There's another tangible benefit, too. Because of this buried cable construction program, new jobs will be created. Some in the telephone business (which already has 52,179 persons on the payroll), but most important, an estimated 500 new jobs among the hundreds of firms which sell supplies, services and materials to the telephone company.
This is a 1965 communications bonus from Southwestern Bell. Part of a massive construction effort (our biggest ever) to make the world's best telephone service even more useful, dependable, convenient and valuable seven days a week, good weather and bad.

Delay Hearing On Annexation

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A hearing on the city's declaratory judgment suit to annex an additional 13 square miles of territory was postponed in mid-afternoon Thursday until Sept. 22.

The hearing had been scheduled to start Friday in Common Pleas Court.

Judge W. O. Statler ordered the continuance on the oral motion of James R. McHaney, attorney for persons opposing the annexation.

McHaney requested the action, he said, when he was unable to get answers to a number of questions regarding the city from City Attorney Stephen N. Limbaugh.

The city attorney objected to the motion for continuance, but Judge Statler overruled him and set the dates for the hearing from Sept. 22 to 24.

Five-County Poverty Organization Blows Up

VIENNA, Ill. -- The Shawnee Development Council -- a five county organization designed to guide the war on poverty program -- may have died Wednesday, just four days after its birth.

A meeting held in Vienna Wednesday and attended by representatives from Alexander Pulaski, Union, Massac, and Johnson counties, disintegrated when the Alexander County delegation walked out after a dispute over where offices of the five-county director of the program should be located.

At the same time, Ray Meisenheimer, who has been employed as director-coordinator of the Alexander County Community Action program, announced that he had resigned, effective immediately.

Meisenheimer's resignation was submitted before the Wednesday meeting and he said that he had agreed to attend the Vienna meeting and continued to guide efforts to organize the five-county program until a replacement could be secured. Meisenheimer had been paid a salary of $100 per week by the City of Cairo while serving as director-coordinator of the program.

He said the Vienna meeting had progressed nicely until the matter of location of the director's office arose.

"Cairo authorized our delegation to offer at no cost to the program a suite of two offices, equipped with furniture, utilities supplied, a janitor service, and air conditioning," Meisenheimer said. "The only other location offered was an abandoned school building at Karnak that would have to be equipped with utilities and renovated before it could be used as an office."

Pulaski, Union, Johnson, and Massac counties all voted to locate the office in the Karnak building and it was at this point the Alexander County delegation left the meeting.

Meisenheimer said it now appeared the Shawnee Development Council would not be organized as a five-county unit. He gave no indication about what course would be pursued in the future.

This was the third meeting of the five county group to organize into a regional unit. Some progress was made in the two previous meetings, although undercurrents of dissension over location of the director's office were detected in the meeting held in Cairo last Friday.

"We had been instructed by our county Community Action Committee to stand fast for having the director's office located here," Meisenheimer said. "We feel it should be located in the center of the poverty stricken area and past experience has proved that when offices are located further upstate, we receive only limited benefits."

He pointed out that 25 percent of the population in Alexander County was classified as poverty stricken, and that 26 per cent of Pulaski County was in this classification.

In comparison, only four per cent of Union County, seven per cent of Johnson County, and nine per cent of Massac County, are in this classification.

Members of the Alexander County delegation expressed surprise that the Pulaski County delegation did not offer a site for the office or support the Alexander County offer, since these two counties contain the vast majority of people on poverty rolls in the five-county area.

What effect this disruption of the Shawnee Development Council would have on processing of proposals submitted for approval by the individual counties could not be immediately determined.

Valuation Rises In New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- New Madrid County's valuation is within one tenth of one per cent of the 1964 valuation for tax purposes, according to Jesse H. Wilkins, County Clerk. Wilkins has received certification from the State Tax Commission approving the values for 1965, as turned in by Assessor, Preston Utterback.

Real estate values are down $600,000, and personal values are down some $370,000, while the merchants and manufacturers values were upped by $2000, and railroads and utilities increased by $870,000.

County Rep. Gene Copeland and County Clerk Wilkins teamed up put the brakes on annual increases on farm lands and city lots by furnishing the State Tax Commission with statistics from 1951 to 1964 on increases given New Madrid County.

It was shown by their statistics that farm lands had increased in value by 153% over the 14-year period for tax purposes, which was an average increase of 10.99% per year for 14 years. It was further shown that even though the population had decreased by more than 25% that personal property values for tax purposes had held its own and had been increased by 22%.

Apparently the State Tax Commission, with some new members on the Commission, feels inclined to agree that New Madrid County values have increased sufficiently to meet the 30% of actual value, at least for the time being.

With the new values certified to the clerk, the County Court proceeded to make the tax levies for 1965, and with the state tax being lowered to 6 cents from 7 cents, the Court set the same rates for county purposes as for the prior year; namely county revenue 40¢, johnson grass control 5¢, library 10¢, health center 10¢, and road and bridge 30¢, all rates being based on $100,00 valuation. The average school rate is $2.73.

The various school tax rates furnished the County Clerk are: Sikeston R-6 $4, up 16¢; Dogwood R-2 $3.40, up $1.40; Portageville R-1 $2.85, no change; Risco R-2 $2.20, no change; Parma R-3 $2.50, up 5¢; Lilbourn R-4 $2.50, no change; Matthews R-5 $2.50, no change; New Madrid R - 6 $3.00, no change; Morehouse C-12 $2.95, up 2¢; Gideon 37 $3.00, no change; and Higgerson 24 $1.10, up 5 cents.

No person shall be elected governor more than twice, and no person who has held the office of governor, or acted as governor, for more than two years of a term to which some other person was elected to the office of governor shall be elected to the office of governor more than once. The state treasurer shall not be eligible for election as his own successor. The heads of all the executive departments shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. All appointive officers may be removed by the governor and shall possess the qualifications required by this constitution or by law.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 2

(Submitted by the 73rd General Assembly)

To authorize cities, in addition to the existing power to lease, to dispose of plants for manufacturing and industrial development purposes constructed from proceeds of revenue bonds.

JOINT RESOLUTION

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring therein:

That at the next general election to be held in the state of Missouri, on Tuesday next following the first Monday in November, 1966, or at a special election to be called by the governor for that purpose, there is hereby submitted to the qualified voters of this state, for adoption or rejection, the following amendment to Article VI of the constitution of the state of Missouri:

Section 27. Any city or incorporated town or village in this state, by vote of four-sevenths of the qualified electors thereof voting thereon, may issue and sell its negotiable interest bearing revenue bonds for the purpose of paying all or part of the cost of purchasing, constructing, extending or improving any of the following: (1) revenue producing water, gas or electric light works, heating or power plants; (2) plants to be leased or otherwise disposed of pursuant to law to private persons or corporations for manufacturing and industrial development purposes, including the real estate, buildings, fixtures and machinery; or (3) airports; to be owned exclusively by the municipality, the cost of operation and maintenance and the principal and interest of the bonds to be payable solely from the revenues derived by the municipality from the operation of the utility or the lease of the plant.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 3

(Submitted by the 73rd General Assembly)

Repeal seven Sections of Article III and adopt 5 new Sections which provides: 168 members of the House of Representatives to be elected from districts. Apportionment shall follow each decennial census with certain exceptions. House to be reapportioned by law. Be it resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring therein:

That at the next general election to be held in the state of Missouri, on Tuesday next following the first Monday in November, 1966, or at a special election to be called by the governor for that purpose, there is hereby submitted to the qualified voters of this state, for adoption or rejection, the following amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Missouri:

Section 1. Sections 2, 3, 5, 8, 9, 10 and 17, Article III, Constitution of Missouri, are repealed and five new sections adopted in lieu thereof to be known as sections 2, 5, 9, 10 and 17, and to read as follows:

Section 2. The house of representatives shall consist of one hundred sixty-eight members elected from one hundred sixty-eight districts to be apportioned and numbered as provided by law, or as otherwise provided herein.

Section 5. The senate shall consist of thirty-four members elected by the qualified voters of the respective districts for four years. For the election of senators, the state shall be divided into convenient districts of contiguous territory, as compact and nearly equal in population as may be.

Section 9. The house of representatives as now constituted shall continue until January 1, 1967.

Section 10. The last decennial census of the United States shall be used in apportioning representatives and in determining the population of senatorial and representative districts. The apportionment of representatives shall be made once only and in the year following the taking of each decennial census unless a court of competent jurisdiction orders reapportionment; or, in the event, that on or before January 1, 1969, apportionment on a basis other than population is permitted by amendment to the Constitution of the United States or by ruling of a court of competent jurisdiction, then sections 2 and 3 of Article III of the Constitution of Missouri as adopted February 27, 1945, shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the state for adoption or rejection at the next general election following the effective date of the court order or amendment to the Constitution of the United States, or at a special election to be called by the governor for that purpose. If the amendment so submitted is rejected, apportionment shall be as provided by the then effective law.

Section 17. The house of representatives shall not employ more than two hundred twenty-five and the senate shall not employ more than one hundred employees, elective, appointive or any other at any time during the session.

Johnson Dominates American Scene

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In all the political dreams of his life President Johnson probably never imagined anything like this: dominating the American scene with no real opposition in sight.

Johnson last year and President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936 won tremendous election victories and their Democrats, riding their coattails, got overwhelming control of Congress both times.

But Johnson has been shrewder than Roosevelt in the use he made of success and luck, for he had a little better luck than Roosevelt: the Republican party was split in the 1964 election and still is.

Now the divided Republicans are hardly any opposition to him. Even their criticisms are barely audible.

When they do take after him occasionally, as on his handling of the Vietnamese war, it's not because of American involvement but because they want him to bomb harder.

This is a lot different from President Harry S. Truman's experience with the Korean war when, shortly after the United States got into it in 1950, Republicans opened up on him and kept on going.

Since his 1964 election Johnson has carefully done nothing to bristle Democrats or Republicans. In fact, except for a minor thrust once in a while, Johnson has been almost benevolent toward Republicans.

He pulls the strings on this Congress, letting nothing interfere with his determination to shove through what he wants. The result: Congress is running up one of its most impressive records.

With Roosevelt it was different. After his great win in 1936, he wrecked any chance for a stunning performance with his Democratic-run Congress by opening war on the Supreme Court.

That highly conservative court had been throwing out one important New Deal program after another. And on Feb. 7, 1937, less than three weeks after the new Congress took over, Roosevelt opened fire.

He sent a bill to the Capitol proposing drastic court reform, the so-called "court-packing" plan. He instantly ran into fierce dissent in all directions, including Democrats.

That 1937 Congress — unlike this one where Johnson keeps the machinery oiled for speed and performance — got tangled up for months over Roosevelt's proposal and then, in July, rejected it.

While Roosevelt lost this battle, he didn't lose the war. The court, apparently rendered self-conscious by the attacks by Roosevelt and others, switched and began upholding New Deal measures.

In May 1937, three months after Roosevelt began the fight, the court upheld the constitutionality of Social Security, one of the most revolutionary and far-reaching of all the New Deal programs.

But in Congress the court brawl and other dissensions so hampered legislation that in August 1937 it quit without having passed any major measure. In short, Roosevelt didn't handle it well at all.

When Roosevelt won the 1936 election by a landslide it was against a progressive but vague Republican, Alfred M. Landon, whose party was left shattered but not split.

But, luckily for Johnson, after his triumph over the highly conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater in 1964, the Republicans were left both shattered and split. And Johnson has taken full advantage of that.

Identical Twins Operating Restaurant

By Leo Schade

Patrons of the Cyrus restaurant have learned not to be alarmed if they think they are seeing double.

One of the city's most unusual business partnerships is that of the 43-year-old identical Caskey twins, Wendell and Lowell, who own the restaurant. They were born Sept. 24, 1921 in Lenox, Iowa.

It is confusing at times. One of the brothers, recently reunited as owners of the business, may be at the manager's desk. Then he moves to another part of the restaurant. A customer may be confused when he sees another man of identical appearance in another place there only to discover that the second man is the twin brother of the first.

The Caskeys grew up together in Iowa. They always were in the same class in school. They entered the navy's air corps and were commissioned ensigns together. They married in a double wedding ceremony. Their brides lived 20 miles apart in Iowa.

In the years that they were separated, it always was their ambition to go into business together. They have now realized this hope.

Since their marriage March 7, 1944, both have spent time together at intervals. They were instructors at the Malden air-base. Wendell Caskey and his family moved to Sikeston 11 years alo. Lowell Caskey and his family followed. The two men commuted to Malden until the base closed in 1958.

The Wendell Caskeys remained here. He was manager of the Robinson Lumber Company.

Lowell Caskey and his family went to Kansas City where he took a job with the Federal Aviation Agency. There he remained until a few weeks ago.

When one of the twins decided to enlist in the navy air corps his twin brother was ordered to go to another branch of service. Their mother interceded. She prevailed on authorities to let both enter the naval air force.

The twins IQ's were so similar that they were commissioned at the same time. A few hours later they were married in a double wedding ceremony. Lowell married a Bedford girl, and Wendell married a Mt. Ayr girl.

Lowell remained at the Pensacola airbase as an instructor, and Wendell went to the Pacific war theater. The two left the service within a month of each other.

Wendell Caskey has been owner and operator of Cyrus for five years. He and his wife have five children, Lynette, 20, a student at Memphis State, Jimmie, 18, who will enter the Navy, Andy, 13, Wendy Ann 8, and Cathy 4. The family lives at 924 North Ranney.

Lowell Caskey and his wife have three children, Dick, 20; Dianne, 17; and Debbie 4. They have moved to 918 Allen Blvd.

1915 KIWANIS GOLDEN 1965 ANNIVERSARY

50 YEARS OF COMMUNITY SERVICE

Best Wishes
FELLOW KIWANIANS

Congratulations

The Kiwanis Club:

How It All Came About

Considering its present high status in the community, Kiwanis was started for less than lofty ideals. In 1915 a Detriot salesman named Allen Browne, a one-time organizer for the Moose, decided to found his own fraternal club for businessmen with the lure of sick benefits. Browne's motivation undoubtedly was singular: He would keep the $5 fee he charged members to join.

Browne considered naming the organization the Benevolent Order Of Brothers, until someone pointed out the unfortunate meaning of the initials. The club members then asked a Detroit historian, Clarence M. Burton, to select a more appropriate name. He picked a phrase from the Otchipew Indian dialect, Nun-Kee-wan-nis, which he said meant: "We make a noise. We have a good time."

As Kiwanis's purposes expanded beyond those of merely a fraternal group, its members decided that the definition didn't do them justice, and the Indian phrase was translated liberally as "self-expression." The Kiwanis motto of "We Trade was revised to "We Build."

In 1916 Kiwanis sponsored a convention and elected George F. Hixon of Rochester as its first president. Allen Browne in the meantime prospered, having raised the initiation fee first to $10, then to $15. However, in selecting men for his club, he chose top community leaders, who didn't want merely to meet, eat, burp, and adjourn but instead were interested in community activities - and eventually in removing Browne. At a convention at Birmingham in 1919, the delegates voted to obtain control of their own organization.

"How much do you want?" they asked Browne.

"I'll take $17,500," he replied, and he wanted it "tomorrow." The 200 men attending the convention reached into their pockets or went to the bank to sign notes. Within 24 hours Browne had his money and the men had their club.

Rotary has a special room, almost a shrine, dedicated to the memory of its founder, Paul Harris. In the Kiwanis general office in Chicago you can't even find a photograph of Allen Browne.

Fruit of Victory Bitter

WASHINGTON AP -- Democrats are finding that President Johnson's 1964 landslide victory is bearing bitter fruit in the breakdown of party organization in some key areas of the nation.

The voting riches won last year apparently have tended to set many local Democrats squabbling among themselves with the result that the kind of organization which wins state and congressional elections has deteriorated in some sections.

Johnson has given this matter his attention and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey currently is assigned to the task of trying to bring bickering local leaders together into a united front before next year's elections.

Humphrey and his associates don't have to look below the surface to know that there are deep-seated party organization troubles in California, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and New York.

What is especially bad news to the Democrats is that all of these states, except Illinois, are electing governors next year. There is general belief among administration strategists that the Republicans will give campaign priority to trying to win governorships as the quickest route to a national comeback.

Syngman Rhee Dies

HONOLULU AP -- Syngman Rhee, a fierce, old Korean patriot whose greatest dream and last wish eluded him, died at Maunalani Hospital in Honolulu today of a stroke.

He was 90, in failing health for at least three years.

The former South Korean president's last wish was "to go home and die," but increasing debility prevented his return.

The founder of the Korean Republic was admitted to Queen's Hospital a month ago today after he began bleeding internally. His condition improved and he was sent back to the nursing home.

Doctors said they had an hour's indication that death was near, giving them time to summon his Austrian-born wife, Francesca, 65, and his adopted son, Rhee In-soo.

Unfulfilled was his life's ambition and dream--unification of Korea as a republic. The mountainous peninsula on Asia's east coast still is divided along the truce line where the bloody Korean War was halted in 1953.

The funeral will be held at the Korean Christian Church of Honolulu, center of worship for much of Honolulu's small Korean community.

Wilbert Choy, who heads a committee of Korean Community officials handling the services, said Rhee will be buried in Seoul, Korea.

On June 21 Rhee was removed from Korean President Chung Hee Park's political purge list. However, Rhee had been invited back to his homeland before but declining health prevented it.

The former "Tiger of Korea" was tamed by age. Once a driving chief executive who defied Communism and the United Nations, he became a homesick and tired old man.

A nurse said Rhee was kept alive by a dwindling hope of going home to die.

This hope seemed to be the only strength he had left. His health, his stamina and the power he once wielded faded when student riots toppled him from the presidency.

Rhee was the Korean republic's first president and served in the job 12 years. He had just been re-elected to a fourth term when his government was overthrown. Charges of ballot box stuffing, strongarm influence and trickery were hurled at the white-haired president.

He fled the country after protests erupted into violence.

Police Nab Wanted Man

Policemen Leonard Campbell and Larry Sellers took Thomas Lawler into custody Saturday night who was wanted in Butler County for car theft.

They caught Lawler as he was trying to get gas and tires from the Holiday Phillip 66 Service Station on a credit card police charged had been out of date since 1963.

Lawler is wanted in Butler County for the theft of a 1963 Chevrolet from Clarks Garage in Poplar Bluff. He is accused of renting the car from them and of failing to return it July 3.

When Lawler was arrested he was driving a 1965 white Mercury. Officers accused him of taking the license plate from the rented automobile and placing them on the Mercury. He had borrowed the Mercury from a friend.

He was put in jail at Poplar Bluff.

Try to Agree On Poverty Plan

KENNETT -- Federal and state officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity, administering the nation's war on poverty program, are in the Bootheel seeking to reach an accord on methods to administer local projects of the national program.

OEO officials, two of them from Washington, were in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid Counties seeking a way to administer county programs through the five-county area development corporation, which was organized earlier this Spring.

Conferring here with officials of the Dunklin County Economic Opportunity Association, Inc., the county's war on poverty organization, were Michael Moore and James Tice, both of the OEO office in Washington; Wayne Thomas, OEO director from the University of Missouri; and John Rogers, a special OEO assistant to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

OEO officials, discussing the delay of Dunklin County's proposed war on poverty projects, said a change in policy in Washington was responsible for the proposed shift from county to area administration. They said such a transfer of authority would result in lower administration costs for OEO projects in this area.

Dunklin County's "war on poverty" officials, including Carl Jones of Caruth, local OEO board chairman, agreed to the shift in authority. Pemiscot County OEO officials have also agreed to the proposed shift.

Other counties involved in the area OEO program include New Madrid, Scott and Mississippi Counties. The area board is headed by Holcomb School Supt. James Dement.

Still another reason for delays in funding of Bootheel OEO projects, the officials explained here was that original fund requests were for a five-month shifted the funding period from five months to 12 months. OEO officials said to 12 months. OEO officials said the Bootheel's county projects would be changed to include funding for a full year.

If New Madrid, Scott and Mississippi County OEO boards agree to the shift in authority to the area board, officials indicated that funding of projects could begin very quickly. Failure of the counties to agree on area administration could create an indefinite delay, they indicated after meeting here with Dunklin County's OEO board.

Attending the conference with OEO officials were Evan Burge and Clinton Pope of Malden, S. J. Deken, Jack Lincoln and Jane Michel of Campbell, Carl Jones of Caruth, James Dement of Holcomb, Carl Gum of Clarkton, John James and Larney McNear, Jr., of near Steele, and Dr. Marvin Dobbs, Dunklin County Extension Agent.

No Viet Nam Call for Guard In Sikeston

Men in the Sikeston-Portageville National Guard company have not been called into active service in Viet Nam.

The split battalion has not received any word concerning mobilization.

The Associated Press has reported that the Army submitted a tentative estimate that it would need 120,000 guardsmen and reservists in Viet Nam.

The estimates were for planning purposes. First would come the need for units of a particular type -- combat units or infantry, armor, or artillery, or support units, such as engineer, signal and quartermaster.

The Sikeston - Portageville Guard Unit is the second battalion of the mechanized 140th infantry.

Byron Caldwell, administrative technician, said that the battalion is one of the particular types believed to be needed by the Army.

If National Guard unit here is called up, it would not necessarily be sent to Viet Nam. It might replace units previously held in reserve at United States bases or it might train recruits.

Three Caught Stealing Melons

Three Negro youths were caught stealing watermelons from the farm of A. C. James yesterday afternoon. They are Tommy Richards, Earl Howard and Jewell Marshall, all of Sikeston.

James charged that "the trio pulled their car up to a stop on the other end of the field while we were working. By the time I had run down to them they had gotten into the car and had started trying to lock the doors.

"They started to take off and I raised my shotgun up to the windshield and two of them hit the backseat of the car."

The trio was held by police and will be charged with stealing goods valued at less than $50. Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick said. The maximum sentence, he said, is a $1,000 fine and a year's jail sentence.

Disneyland Fetes 10th Anniversary

ANAHEIM, Calif. AP -- Walt Disney celebrated the 10th anniversary of Disneyland by giving his $52 million pleasure park a new star; Abraham Lincoln.

The life-like Lincoln, an electronic marvel created by Disney's wizards, drew warm applause Sunday. It is a more advanced model than the one that has attracted 4 million visitors at the Illinois state pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

This Lincoln stands, gestures with 48 movements and delivers (with the voice of actor Royal Dano) a compilation of the 16th president's utterances on liberty. The face and head, modeled after a life mask, combine 17 different movements.

At opening ceremonies Sunday, Disney explained that the attraction was created on a crash program occasioned by a studio visit of Robert Moses, president of the New York fair.

Sunday's anniversary contrasted with Disneyland's opening exactly 10 years ago, when some termed the $17 million investment in the midst of orange groves "Walt's Folly."

Disney, who borrowed on his own life insurance to open the park, was to have the last laugh. Disneyland grew from 22 to 48 large scale attractions, and attendance climbed to 6 million yearly.

Billions Before House

WASHINGTON (AP) —A $1.9-billion antipoverty measure and a $1-billion military pay raise bill share the voting spotlight in Congress this week.

Both are on the House docket.

The military bill, twice as big as President Johnson requested, was expected to sail through the House with little opposition today. It has not been considered by the Senate, which may yield to administration pressure to whittle it down.

For the antipoverty bill, a broadening and continuation of a problem started last year to help the nation's poor, the outlook is not so bright. Republicans have assailed the measure as a political project designed to woo the votes of the needy.

The bill is scheduled to start its run through the House Tuesday, with administration leaders predicting passage Wednesday or Thursday. It has not been considered by the Senate.

Believe Life On Mars

PASADENA, Calif. AP -- Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory settled down today to an exhaustive study of Mariner 4's photographs of Mars, coming in at a rate of one every 10 hours, in a search for some hint of life.

Laboratory director William H. Pickering believes some sort of life exists on Mars and the agency for which he works, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, has plans for spending hundreds of millions of dollars to find it.

No evidence of life showed up in the first three photographs' released last week. They outlined a desert-like area similar to the broad plains on earth's lifeless moon.

Before any more are released, all of the possible 21 photographs taken as Mariner 4 flew past Mars Wednesday are going to be carefully analyzed.

Transmitted across 134 million miles of space, they contain many "glitches," an engineering term for electronic errors and static. They also show several markings scientists doubt actually exist on Mars. A likelier explanation, they say, would be some fault in the camera and radio system.

Adlai E. Stevenson Goes To His Final Rest

BLOOMINGTON, Il. (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson goes to his final rest today.

A double farewell was arranged by his old hometown — a community memorial service for 8,000 in the Horton Fieldhouse of Illinois State University followed by funeral rites in the Unitarian church.

Invitations to the church service went to President and Mrs. Johnson, Vice President and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey, Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren and others for a ceremony limited by the 200-person capacity to the family and close friends and officials.

Police blocked off streets along the route from the church to 112-year-old Evergreen Memorial Cemetery.

The grave was prepared there in a corner of the family plot. The tranquil glade is marked by a tall, square-cut monument that bears the name of four members of the family, topped by that of Adlai Ewing Stevenson, vice president of the United States in the second administration of President Grover Cleveland.

He was the grandfather of Adlai E. Stevenson, who governed Illinois, ran losing races for the presidency on the Democratic ticket in 1952 and 1956 and served as ambassador to the United Nations until a heart attack killed him Wednesday in London.

Fruit of Victory Bitter

WASHINGTON AP -- Democrats are finding that President Johnson's 1964 landslide victory is bearing bitter fruit in the breakdown of party organization in some key areas of the nation.

The voting riches won last year apparently have tended to set many local Democrats squabbling among themselves with the result that the kind of organization which wins state and congressional elections has deteriorated in some sections.

Johnson has given this matter his attention and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey currently is assigned to the task of trying to bring bickering local leaders together into a united front before next year's elections.

Humphrey and his associates don't have to look below the surface to know that there are deep-seated party organization troubles in California, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and New York.

What is especially bad news to the Democrats is that all of these states, except Illinois, are electing governors next year. There is general belief among administration strategists that the Republicans will give campaign priority to trying to win governorships as the quickest route to a national comeback.

Syngman Rhee Dies

HONOLULU AP -- Syngman Rhee, a fierce, old Korean patriot whose greatest dream and last wish eluded him, died at Maunalani Hospital in Honolulu today of a stroke.

He was 90, in failing health for at least three years.

The former South Korean president's last wish was "to go home and die," but increasing debility prevented his return.

The founder of the Korean Republic was admitted to Queen's Hospital a month ago today after he began bleeding internally. His condition improved and he was sent back to the nursing home.

Doctors said they had an hour's indication that death was near, giving them time to summon his Austrian-born wife, Francesca, 65, and his adopted son, Rhee In-soo.

Unfulfilled was his life's ambition and dream--unification of Korea as a republic. The mountainous peninsula on Asia's east coast still is divided along the truce line where the bloody Korean War was halted in 1953.

The funeral will be held at the Korean Christian Church of Honolulu, center of worship for much of Honolulu's small Korean community.

Wilbert Choy, who heads a committee of Korean Community officials handling the services, said Rhee will be buried in Seoul, Korea.

On June 21 Rhee was removed from Korean President Chung Hee Park's political purge list. However, Rhee had been invited back to his homeland before but declining health prevented it.

The former "Tiger of Korea" was tamed by age. Once a driving chief executive who defied Communism and the United Nations, he became a homesick and tired old man.

A nurse said Rhee was kept alive by a dwindling hope of going home to die.

This hope seemed to be the only strength he had left. His health, his stamina and the power he once wielded faded when student riots toppled him from the presidency.

Rhee was the Korean republic's first president and served in the job 12 years. He had just been re-elected to a fourth term when his government was overthrown. Charges of ballot box stuffing, strongarm influence and trickery were hurled at the white-haired president.

He fled the country after protests erupted into violence.

Police Nab Wanted Man

Policemen Leonard Campbell and Larry Sellers took Thomas Lawler into custody Saturday night who was wanted in Butler County for car theft.

They caught Lawler as he was trying to get gas and tires from the Holiday Phillip 66 Service Station on a credit card police charged had been out of date since 1963.

Lawler is wanted in Butler County for the theft of a 1963 Chevrolet from Clarks Garage in Poplar Bluff. He is accused of renting the car from them and of failing to return it July 3.

When Lawler was arrested he was driving a 1965 white Mercury. Officers accused him of taking the license plate from the rented automobile and placing them on the Mercury. He had borrowed the Mercury from a friend.

He was put in jail at Poplar Bluff.

Try to Agree On Poverty Plan

KENNETT -- Federal and state officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity, administering the nation's war on poverty program, are in the Bootheel seeking to reach an accord on methods to administer local projects of the national program.

OEO officials, two of them from Washington, were in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid Counties seeking a way to administer county programs through the five-county area development corporation, which was organized earlier this Spring.

Conferring here with officials of the Dunklin County Economic Opportunity Association, Inc., the county's war on poverty organization, were Michael Moore and James Tice, both of the OEO office in Washington; Wayne Thomas, OEO director from the University of Missouri; and John Rogers, a special OEO assistant to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

OEO officials, discussing the delay of Dunklin County's proposed war on poverty projects, said a change in policy in Washington was responsible for the proposed shift from county to area administration. They said such a transfer of authority would result in lower administration costs for OEO projects in this area.

Dunklin County's "war on poverty" officials, including Carl Jones of Caruth, local OEO board chairman, agreed to the shift in authority. Pemiscot County OEO officials have also agreed to the proposed shift.

Other counties involved in the area OEO program include New Madrid, Scott and Mississippi Counties. The area board is headed by Holcomb School Supt. James Dement.

Still another reason for delays in funding of Bootheel OEO projects, the officials explained here was that original fund requests were for a five-month shifted the funding period from five months to 12 months. OEO officials said to 12 months. OEO officials said the Bootheel's county projects would be changed to include funding for a full year.

West Plains Girl Wins

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A 20-year-old blue-eyed beauty from West Plains will represent Missouri at the Miss America pageant in September at Atlantic City, N.J.

Miss Lesley Fleenor was crowned Miss Missouri Saturday night at the climax of the state pageant here.

The contest was not a new experience for Miss Fleenor, who will be a junior at Springfield State this fall. She was second runner-up last year when she represented Springfield.

Miss Fleenor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Fleenor of West Plains, is 5-foot-4, weighs 105 pounds and has light brown hair and olive complexion. Her measurements are 35-22-35.

She is a member of the Springfield State Tent Theater, where her father is musical director. Her talent selection for the Miss Missouri pageant was "Cornet Man" from the musical "Funny Girl." She said she plans to use the same selection for the Miss America contest.

As Miss Missouri, Miss Fleenor received scholarships totaling $1,300 and other awards.

First runner-up was Miss Columbia, Donna Lynn Fogle, 18, a sophomore at Missouri University. Miss Marion County, Jane Carolyn Christian, 19, of Hannibal, was second runner up; Miss University of Missouri, Sharon Lorch, 19, St. Louis third runner up, and Miss Kansas City, Barbara Gilbertson, 18, was fourth.

Enthusiasm High At Scout Roundup

FARRAGUT, Idaho AP--Only three things seemed uncontrollable as the 1965 Girl Scout Senior Roundup entered its fifth day today: The wind, the sun and the enthusiasm of 9,000 teen-age girls.

About 200 military policemen and Idaho State Police tightened already tight security around the 5,000-acre camp over the weekend, when 11,398 tourists poured in, 7,297 of them Sunday.

But directors of the roundup reported all was running smoothly.

The Scouts spend most of their mornings hiking in the nearby Bitterroot Mountains or taking bus tours through the Kaniksu National Forest.

Break Glass, Rob Stores

Two liquor stores were broken into Sunday by thieves who entered by breaking into the fronts of the buildings.

One was the Lon Nall Liquor Store, north of the city limits on highway 61. The other was the Baugher Liquor Store on East Malone.

Nall had the heavier loss. A brick was tossed through the front door of the Baugher establishment between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. Sunday. Six fifths of liquor was taken.

The drive-in window on the east side of the building was shattered.

Police held one man in the investigation.

Nall's loss has not been determined but the thieves there had expensive tastes.

Missing are the contents of two money sacks, one containing $110 and the other an undetermined amount in coins believed to have been equally as large. A large quantity of liquor is missing.

How many bottles of liquor were taken, mostly fifths, will not be determined until an inventory is taken. The shelves disclose the best brands were taken. Also taken was a Motorala TV set. The loss was partially insured.

Three Americans Die in Viet Nam

Adlai E. Stevenson Goes To His Final Rest

BLOOMINGTON, Il. (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson goes to his final rest today.

A double farewell was arranged by his old hometown — a community memorial service for 8,000 in the Horton Fieldhouse of Illinois State University followed by funeral rites in the Unitarian church.

Invitations to the church service went to President and Mrs. Johnson, Vice President and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey, Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren and others for a ceremony limited by the 200-person capacity to the family and close friends and officials.

Police blocked off streets along the route from the church to 112-year-old Evergreen Memorial Cemetery.

The grave was prepared there in a corner of the family plot. The tranquil glade is marked by a tall, square-cut monument that bears the name of four members of the family, topped by that of Adlai Ewing Stevenson, vice president of the United States in the second administration of President Grover Cleveland.

He was the grandfather of Adlai E. Stevenson, who governed Illinois, ran losing races for the presidency on the Democratic ticket in 1952 and 1956 and served as ambassador to the United Nations until a heart attack killed him Wednesday in London.

Thousands of persons filed past Stevenson's flag-draped casket in the church Sunday at the rate of 700 or more an hour

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Monday, July 19 Henry Wadsworth Longfellow renews his poetic license.

There are many advantages in living in a small city.

Sikeston has every reason to be proud of its position as such a city, which cannot be described as metropolitan.

Many of the community's young people want to return to Sikeston to live after they complete their college education, their military service or after working in a larger city for awhile.

That isn't true of every small city.

Sikeston has friendly people, good recreational facilities, well maintained residences, fine churches, good medical services and an excellent hospital, diversified work opportunities and many other assets, not the least of which is a fine public school system.

It is easier to shop in a small city. The resident doesn't have to drive or walk miles to visit a hardware store, a grocery store and a drug store. There are centrally located shopping facilities.

There is no need to drive miles every day to and from work.

The living pace is more relaxed.

A small city is a better place to rear a family. It is a safer place in which to live.

Urban centers have graver crime and other social problems. Life is more impersonal and living problems are more complex.

Yet why do so many small city people, who by choice live in them, spend so much time condemning them.

"Just small town cops," says Joe of the police department.

"Just a small town (or hick) newspaper," says George.

"Just a country store," says John.

That's what Joe, George and John, all small town men themselves say. -- Maybe hicks, too.

If they like it here why do they condemn and belittle small city institutions?

Why do they as small city residents feel that they are superior to the rest of the community?

We don't get it.

ADVERTISING KEEPS
YOUR COMMUNITY ALIVE

The local retailer can be a major force in the increase in the wealth and welfare of his community.

In fact, to be successful in modern business, the retailer necessarily becomes a primary factor in community progress. A suburban retail association lists some of the merchant's contributions as follows:

1. "Sales efficiency. To stay in business the merchant must continuously seek more effective methods of distribution. This leads to cheaper prices for everyone.

2. "Increased motivation. Retail advertising is the most important factor in the immediate purchase of new products which reduce labor and make living more pleasant and healthful.

3. "Creation of trade center. A community is unified by its trading center. Take away the progressive stores and the citizens focus their interests and spend their money at more distant centers.

4. "Promotion of stronger institutions. The merchant knows what good schools, stable government, and recreational and cultural facilities affect his own business, because happy, informed and active people are his best customers."

Retail advertising which is the best mirror of the nature of a trading center, then, does more than sells goods from day to day.

Advertising of good merchants is the repository of stimuli which keeps a community alive.

Purchases of fuel, materials and supplies by the U. S. railroads rose in 1964 to $1,599,000 -- the highest total since 1957 and the third consecutive annual increase in such spending, according to the Association of American Railroads. This does not include the record spending of $1,417,000,000 by the railroads for capital equipment and improvements. Another $300 million in allied firms' purchases of rolling stock brought to nearly $3.2 billion railroading's overall contribution to the national economy.

When a judge is too familiar with the background of a case he calls in another judge or transfers the case. Objectivity has an important bearing on the administration of justice and every responsible judge acts to prevent any possible conflict of interest from arising in his court.

The same type of thinking should apply to the entire legal process beginning with the man placed under arrest.

The blood of Carl E. Norman, 21, is on the hands of the top administrator of the Los Angeles police department and not the tormented police lieutenant, Thomas E. O'Neal, who pumped three bullets into him, wounding him seriously.

The brooding O'Neal shot the man because he believed Norman was one of a gang of young ruffians who raped his daughter. The young man was held for suspicion of possession of marijuana but subsequently was exonerated of any part of the attack on the girl.

No peace officer, regardless of his calm outward appearance, normal good judgment or his good record, should be given any responsibility for a prisoner suspected of a crime against him or his family. He should be removed from the temptation to heap verbal abuse or attack such a prisoner or prisoners.

The crime committed against this police officer's daughter was a revolting and despicable one and Lieutenant O'Neal's superiors should have known that he might attempt to take the law into his own hands. They are guilty of negligence in the failure to give Norman the protection to which any citizen is entitled.

They have the obligation of course to do everything possible to bring the rapists to justice, but that doesn't excuse their failure to protect the wounded prisoner and the harassed police lieutenant. The officer has been suspended without pay at a time when he needs the money for the medical bills of his emotionally destraught daughter.

It is the Chief of Police who should be suspended and not Lieutenant O'Neal.

More than 105 million Americans are expected to spend approximately $22 billion on pleasure trips taking them a hundred miles or more from home during 1965, according to an officer of American Oil Company. Almost 49 per cent of this expenditure will be far gasoline, motor oil, motels, and hotels. Some 28 per cent will be spent on food, 11 per cent on entertainment, and the balance of 12 per cent on a variety of items from sun glasses to fishing tackle.

EDUCATION

Every man has two educations --that which is given to him, and the other, that which he gives himself. Of the two kinds, the latter is by far the most valuable. Indeed all that is most worthy in man, he must work out and conquer for himself. It is that, that constitutes our real and best nourishment. What we are merely taught, seldom nourishes the mind like that which we teach ourselves.

BEDICAL BYSTERY

The doctors admit that "as of now, we can't cure colds," and add, "anyone who tells you he can, deserves at best considerable suspicion."

Such is the word of the American Medical Association on the subject of "the common cold," which says that while most people know it can't be cured, "we still waste a lot of time and money on pills and nostrums and treatments -- all in the faint hope that maybe this time something will help." The AMA also takes a dim view of vaccines for cold prevention, declaring that it is "unlikely that a vaccine will help much."

Grandma had the right idea, if you ask the AMA. "If you get a cold," it advises, "stay home in bed, Keep warm. Gargle to ease a sore throat. Take aspirin for the discomfort. None of this will cure the cold, but it will make you feel somewhat more comfortable while your body's natural defense mechanisms are building up enough steam to overcome the cold virus."

But don't think the medicos are giving up. Research goes on to find the cause and "possible cure" for colds and the AMA expresses the hope that: "Perhaps the answers may be found some day."

We may be sure they will let us know when that happens!

HELP WANTED
(but no takers)

A company which buys hundreds of thousands of hickory billets (split much like stove wood) sent buyers into a mountain state. There was plenty of hickory available, but no one would take the trouble to split it. It takes little or no skill, it isn't hard work, it pays well. But no one wanted the job; relief is too easy. As the buyers said, after spending weeks trying to hire workers, "Rocking seems to beat working."

All unemployment of course is hurtful, and except for the handicapped, IT IS NEEDLESS. If every man and woman out of work would take any job (and not hold out for the work he likes best, but ANY job) and then produce in it efficiently, he would bring costs down, and many more people would soon buy so many more things that more and more jobs would be required.

That's The Way The Ball Bounces

Hal Boyle

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

From the air South Viet Nam looks in many places like a vast cemetery.

When you first fly over the countryside, you notice what at first look like bomb craters or old abandoned wells.

But no one could have dropped that many bombs or abandoned that many wells. What you are seeing are the tombs of some of Asia's unnumbered dead.

Tombs outnumber the rice paddies, where grow in vivid green the white grains that feed the country's living millions.

The tombs cluster by the hundreds in every patch of sandy outworn soil. In smaller numbers, they also stud the fertile rice paddies, as if the clamorous dead were draining the sustenance of the living.

Some of the tombs are new and handsome in gold and blue colors. But most are gray and old and lichen-encrusted, and the dead within them as forgotten as the faded, fallen leaves of a flame tree.

The poet Sara Teasdale wrote of "children's faces looking up, holding wonder like cup."

It is the faces of Vietnamese children that give most encouragement to Americans here. They are so bright-eyed, enthusiastic, and eager to accept change.

In the eyes of the middle-aged and elderly, you are depressed to see sometimes a veiled animosity or at best a dull passivity. Often you have the feeling they don't really see you at all — they are either looking through you or around you, as if you were not there at all.

But the children and the youths see you. They are interested in Americans and this is cheering, even though you may have to face up to the fact that what they are looking for may more often be a cigarette than help to political freedom.

The hardest thing for Americans to get used to over here is Vietnamese money. It is by far the shabbiest paper currency on earth, particularly in small denominations.

The largest bill is the 500-piastre note. This is worth about $7, and they are invariably clean and crisp and neat.

The average Vietnamese worker, who earns from less than 60 up to 85 piastres a day, rarely gets his hands on one. The 100- and 200-piastre notes are usually in pretty good shape, too.

The five, 10- and 20-piastre notes — and particularly the fives — are the financial language of the poor. The five-piastre note is so dirty, frayed, unsanitary and pawed over that you feel you may be contracting a nameless disease every time you accept one in change.

The situation in South Viet Nam is bewildering in many ways to thousands of the American military men stationed here. The customs of the people are so different, the conduct of the war itself is so different, from anything they have known before.

But there is also a great determination on the part of most to see this thing through.

I think the best expression of both this bewilderment and determination that I have heard was made by Capt. James W. Haerer, 33, a fighter pilot from Tampa, Fla.

During a flight we made together on a supply plane to a mountain fort, Haerer said:

"You don't always know what you're fighting over here —but you know it has to be fought."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- One of the most interesting relationships in the life of Adlai Stevenson was that with President Johnson. One an intellectual, the other a politician, they were closer than Adlai was with John F. Kennedy.

This was not always the case. In 1956, Stevenson was on much closer terms with the young Harvard - trained Senator than with Lyndon Johnson, Estes Kefauver or any of the big wheels of the Democratic party. Personally, he would have preferred Kennedy to Kefauver as his running-mate.

In 1956, furthermore, he had not been getting along at all well with Johnson, then Senate Majority Leader and a man who resented the Advisory Committee of the Democratic party, a group which included Stevenson, Kefauver, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Gov. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut.

Johnson and his friend, Speaker San Rayburn, both of Texas, boycotted the committee meetings and there was friction between Stevenson, the titular leader of the Democratic party, and Johnson, the dominating Democrat of the Senate.

SECRET ALLIANCE

But in 1960 an unusual political alliance, little known to the public, drew them together. It was an alliance to block the nomination of John F. Kennedy.

It was agreed that Stevenson would stay in the nomination race, not with the hope of winning, but in order to prevent Kennedy from winning on the first ballot.

Johnson had been a slow starter, had not been able to campaign because of his Senate duties. His only hope was a deadlock after which the convention would turn to him. Stevenson agreed to use his delegates to that end. Kennedy repeatedly asked him to withdraw and got quite irritated when he refused.

The strategy failed and, when Kennedy got the nomination, no one was more vigorous in campaigning for him than Adlai Stevenson.

But Adlai once told me that he suspected Kennedy resented his alliance with Lyndon and that this was one reason why he never became Secretary of State.

However, the Los Angeles alliance brought Stevenson, the intellectual, and Johnson, the practical politician, much closer together. And after Johnson assumed the presidency, they became even closer. Johnson invited Stevenson to every luncheon or dinner pertaining to foreign affairs, frequently phoned him in New York for advice.

I talked to Adlai in New York shortly after American troops landed in the Dominican Republic; And while he had always been opposed to intervention he confessed that, had he been in the President's shoes, his decision might have been similar.

He had come to Washington to attend a White House strategy meeting on Viet Nam and was sitting in the little green room just off the President's main office when the final message came through from Ambassador Tapley Bennett in Santo Domingo requesting troops.

Johnson placed a sheaf of telegrams in Adlai's hands. It would have taken 30 minutes to read them. Meanwhile the Ambassador was phoning Washington from under his desk with bullets whizzing through Embassy windows. Johnson gave the order to land troops.

Adlai was not happy about Dominican intervention, but never said so. He believed in playing on the Johnson team.

Thus there continued a genuine friendship between two strong men of opposite backgrounds and opposite personalities. When the President got the news of Adlai's death, he had trouble keeping back the tears.

JAPANESE AND SHRINERS

The joint meetings between Japanese and American Cabinet members were frank, healthy and a tribute to the ability of two one-time enemies to become friends. But there was one thing the visiting Japanese officials just couldn't understand -- the Shriners.

When the Japanese arrived at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington the Shriners' convention was just convening.

And the fastidious gentlemen from Tokyo, looking prim and proper, gaped with amazement at the men dressed in Arab fezzes, baggy pants and in one case riding a camel, who dominated the hotel lobby.

The highest officers in the Japanese government, usually the height of punctuality, were late for appointments because they could not take their eyes off this new breed of Americans.

They watched them pinch ladies, light matches and pretend to set fire to hotel carpets, and otherwise relax as only Homo Americanus can when away from home.

The Japanese Cabinet members didn't ask questions. But from the look on their faces they must have wondered whether a new type of American had been lurking undiscovered on the Western Hemisphere during the years.

Note: A group of Africans was observing the Shriner Parade, dressed in their gaudy native garb. Evidently puzzled by the Shriner costumes, one of them turned to a bystander and asked: "Is Johnson still President?"

JAPANESE BOO-BOO

At the White House luncheon for the Japanese Cabinet there occurred such a boo-boo as seldom happens at state functions.

News of Adlai Stevenson's death came while the luncheon was in progress. President Johnson set aside his prepared speech and paid tribute to Stevenson. And Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shiina did the same.

But when the interpreter translated Shiina's speech, the English version put the Foreign Minister in the position of paying tribute to "The Late" Henry Cabot Lodge, who, of course, was not dead but who was Ambassador to the U. N. under Eisenhower.

President Johnson did not say a word in correction; Nor did any of the American guests. They figured the error was a slip of the tongue by the interpreter.

"I don't think I can make it again," said Tom softly.

JUVENILE MOBS

The Fourth of July weekend this year, which in a more constructive time would have been devoted chiefly to the celebration of our national independence, brought with it a grim tale of rioting and looting by juvenile mobs in once-peaceful resorts all over America.

Despite the strange attempts of many commentators to brush this off as nothing new, or nothing to be alarmed about, in fact it deserves our deepest concern. It is true that rioting and looting, even by young people, are not new in history. Undoubtedly they were common, as one "reassuring" voice has said, in medieval Germany. But until recently they have not been common in America.

Little towns on the Great Lakes, on the seashore, or on the lovely wooded lakes of northern New England which in normal times never knew mass violence, were torn and gutted by young vandals screaming for thrills. Hundreds were injured and millions of dollars' worth of damage done.

Physical injuries heal and property damage can be repaired. But the injuries of character and the spirit, inflicted on themselves and on their companions by the desperate and confused youths who inspired these riots, may prove incurable.

These young people are not deeply evil. They are striking out blindly against a world and a country which seems to them to have given them no moral standards to live by and no purpose in life. By their acts they condemn all who taught them, by work or implication, that there is no real difference between right and wrong.

That is the void in their lives which we must fill. HLH.

Top Crime Fighter Charges Underworld Syndicates Destroy Civil Rights of the Public

For more than four years one man actively directed a daily battle against the vast networks of the criminal syndicates. This was the task of Herbert J. Miller, until recently assistant attorney general of the U. S. in charge of the Criminal Division of the Justice Dept. Under him was the organized crime and rackets section. I asked him whether there really was a chance of ever cracking the Mafia-type underworld. Here is his reply:

By Herbert J. Miller

Washington, D. C.: -- We can assume that the most sacred duty of government is to guarantee to those who comprise it those rights which are the foundation of a free society. Freedom of worship, freedom of speech and the freedom to vote one's choice in an honest election are considered by most to be the bedrock upon which this republic is bottomed.

Two additional rights, however, which are just as basic and which are in daily conflict, are first, the right to be free from governmental oppression and, secondly, the right of a citizen to governmental protection from the depredations of the lawless against his person and property. Every reasonable precaution must be taken in the interest of both of these basic rights to assure that neither is unduly or unfairly subordinated.

If this balance is not achieved, the innocent will suffer and the citizens of this country will live the antithesis of freedom and liberty.

If a latter day Peter Zenger faces incarceration because his printed opinion was circulated for all to read to the discomfiture and rage of government hierarchy, we have lost part of the heritage that the founders of this government sought to guarantee to all of us. If one of us is imprisoned on charges fostered by a governmental official who finds it politically expedient to remove an individual from a position in which he can criticize the government, we have no different result.

The very thought of such governmental interference causes a visceral reaction of antagonism and outrage--as well it should, for this is our very heritage that is being subverted. This revulsion from these acts is primarily caused by the fact that they are actions by the government or, more properly, the acts of individuals cloaked with governmental power. These acts, in other words, make it "an unfair fight."

But, how do most people react when the same type of depredaton and deprivation of rights is visited upon a citizen by a single thug or a group of individual criminals acting in concert rather than by the government?

The reaction is one of instant condemnation and almost immediate concern with other matters. Why is it that this same deprivation of rights can be accomplished by the criminal underworld, and the average person upon hearing even the most gruesome facts has but a fleeting sense of anger? His anger is shortly followed by a sense of relief that he was not the victim.

What makes this even more puzzling is that, in a large measure, it was a governmental omission that permitted this act to take place against an innocent victim. Of course, the government can only use the tools at its disposal in combatting crime.

The real tragedy is that the rights which surround the accused are so impenetrable that the accused is often permitted to roam the streets and commit further crimes. Innocent persons suffer as a result. The government, instead of vigorously protecting the rights of its citizens, thus permits them to be trampled.

In one area of criminality, organized crime, the protective rights surrounding the individual demonstrably and seriously handicap law enforcement. Since Joe Valachi publicly broke with his organization, the Cosa Nostra, most people will concede the existence of that organization. It is an organization which is dedicated to criminal conduct, to killings, extortions and robberies, in order that its members may live an affluent life on the work product of law abiding citizens. But the dismal part of the Valachi revelations is that the organization has existed and operated in this country for many years, and still is very much alive.

The existence of a secret criminal organization for such a long period of time can be explained either in terms of the inefficiency of law enforcement or that the individual rights of the members of this criminal conspiracy effectively protect and permit the continuation of the organization.

While this is admittedly an oversimplification, the glaring fact remains that despite all of the efforts of local police forces, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, the Internal Revenue Service and the many other investigative agencies of the Federal Government, the organization continues to operate.

The continuation of this criminal conspiracy is a forceful argument that law enforcement operating under present rules, decisions and statutes is unable to eradicate the problem. The glib answer, that it is better that a hundred go free rather than that one innocent person be convicted, solves nothing. An equally glib retort is that the freeing of a guilty person can and has given the freed defendant the opportunity to murder an innocent person.

What is the result? The government, by freeing the guilty, has permitted the defendant to not merely imprison but take the life of an innocent person. The continued operation of this criminal syndicate is a tacit admission that the rights of the victims of that organization have been subordinated to the rights of those accused of committing the crime. The very existence of the organization would seem to prove that much.

But much can be done to restore the balance of rights so that officers of the law will be in a position to fulfill their prime duty -- protection of the innocent. One is for Congress to enact statutes recently proposed by the Department of Justice that will enable the prosecutor to give immunity from prosecution to those who give evidence of a crime. Refusal to testify after being given immunity could result in a prison term.

It is only with immunity statutes that the underlings of the Cosa Nostra can be compelled to testify concerning this criminal conduct of the higher-ups in the syndicate. Now such individuals invoke their right not to testify under the Fifth Amendment -- which they have a right to do. But once given immunity from prosecution, those Fifth Amendment rights cannot be used as a basis for not testifying.

Only with this additional legislation can law enforcement have any real hope of breaking the solid code of silence which cloaks criminal conduct of the most brutal and sadistic nature. Surely government must take this minimal step to protect future innocent victims of criminal greed. Only with additional legislation can this blight on our democracy be eliminated.

Judge Learned Hand once said, "The protection of the individual from oppression and abuse by the police and other enforcing officers is indeed a major interest in a free society; but so is the effective prosecution of crime, an interest which at times seems to be forgotten."

There are many advantages in living in a small city.

Sikeston has every reason to be proud of its position as such a city, which cannot be described as metropolitan.

Many of the community's young people want to return to Sikeston to live after they complete their college education, their military service or after working in a larger city for awhile.

That isn't true of every small city.

Sikeston has friendly people, good recreational facilities, well maintained residences, fine churches, good medical services and an excellent hospital, diversified work opportunities and many other assets, not the least of which is a fine public school system.

It is easier to shop in a small city. The resident doesn't have to drive or walk miles to visit a hardware store, a grocery store and a drug store. There are centrally located shopping facilities.

There is no need to drive miles every day to and from work.

The living pace is more relaxed.

A small city is a better place to rear a family. It is a safer place in which to live.

Urban centers have graver crime and other social problems. Life is more impersonal and living problems are more complex.

Yet why do so many small city people, who by choice live in them, spend so much time condemning them.

"Just small town cops," says Joe of the police department.

"Just a small town (or hick) newspaper," says George.

"Just a country store," says John.

That's what Joe, George and John, all small town men themselves say. -- Maybe hicks, too.

If they like it here why do they condemn and belittle small city institutions?

Why do they as small city residents feel that they are superior to the rest of the community?

We don't get it.

ADVERTISING KEEPS
YOUR COMMUNITY ALIVE

The local retailer can be a major force in the increase in the wealth and welfare of his community.

In fact, to be successful in modern business, the retailer necessarily becomes a primary factor in community progress. A suburban retail association lists some of the merchant's contributions as follows:

1. "Sales efficiency. To stay in business the merchant must continuously seek more effective methods of distribution. This leads to cheaper prices for everyone.

2. "Increased motivation. Retail advertising is the most important factor in the immediate purchase of new products which reduce labor and make living more pleasant and healthful.

3. "Creation of trade center. A community is unified by its trading center. Take away the progressive stores and the citizens focus their interests and spend their money at more distant centers.

4. "Promotion of stronger institutions. The merchant knows what good schools, stable government, and recreational and cultural facilities affect his own business, because happy, informed and active people are his best customers."

Retail advertising which is the best mirror of the nature of a trading center, then, does more than sells goods from day to day.

Advertising of good merchants is the repository of stimuli which keeps a community alive.

Purchases of fuel, materials and supplies by the U. S. railroads rose in 1964 to $1,599,000 -- the highest total since 1957 and the third consecutive annual increase in such spending, according to the Association of American Railroads. This does not include the record spending of $1,417,000,000 by the railroads for capital equipment and improvements. Another $300 million in allied firms' purchases of rolling stock brought to nearly $3.2 billion railroading's overall contribution to the national economy.

When a judge is too familiar with the background of a case he calls in another judge or transfers the case. Objectivity has an important bearing on the administration of justice and every responsible judge acts to prevent any possible conflict of interest from arising in his court.

The same type of thinking should apply to the entire legal process beginning with the man placed under arrest.

The blood of Carl E. Norman, 21, is on the hands of the top administrator of the Los Angeles police department and not the tormented police lieutenant, Thomas E. O'Neal, who pumped three bullets into him, wounding him seriously.

The brooding O'Neal shot the man because he believed Norman was one of a gang of young ruffians who raped his daughter. The young man was held for suspicion of possession of marijuana but subsequently was exonerated of any part of the attack on the girl.

No peace officer, regardless of his calm outward appearance, normal good judgment or his good record, should be given any responsibility for a prisoner suspected of a crime against him or his family. He should be removed from the temptation to heap verbal abuse or attack such a prisoner or prisoners.

The crime committed against this police officer's daughter was a revolting and despicable one and Lieutenant O'Neal's superiors should have known that he might attempt to take the law into his own hands. They are guilty of negligence in the failure to give Norman the protection to which any citizen is entitled.

They have the obligation of course to do everything possible to bring the rapists to justice, but that doesn't excuse their failure to protect the wounded prisoner and the harassed police lieutenant. The officer has been suspended without pay at a time when he needs the money for the medical bills of his emotionally destraught daughter.

It is the Chief of Police who should be suspended and not Lieutenant O'Neal.

More than 105 million Americans are expected to spend approximately $22 billion on pleasure trips taking them a hundred miles or more from home during 1965, according to an officer of American Oil Company. Almost 49 per cent of this expenditure will be far gasoline, motor oil, motels, and hotels. Some 28 per cent will be spent on food, 11 per cent on entertainment, and the balance of 12 per cent on a variety of items from sun glasses to fishing tackle.

EDUCATION

Every man has two educations --that which is given to him, and the other, that which he gives himself. Of the two kinds, the latter is by far the most valuable. Indeed all that is most worthy in man, he must work out and conquer for himself. It is that, that constitutes our real and best nourishment. What we are merely taught, seldom nourishes the mind like that which we teach ourselves.

BEDICAL BYSTERY

The doctors admit that "as of now, we can't cure colds," and add, "anyone who tells you he can, deserves at best considerable suspicion."

Such is the word of the American Medical Association on the subject of "the common cold," which says that while most people know it can't be cured, "we still waste a lot of time and money on pills and nostrums and treatments -- all in the faint hope that maybe this time something will help." The AMA also takes a dim view of vaccines for cold prevention, declaring that it is "unlikely that a vaccine will help much."

Grandma had the right idea, if you ask the AMA. "If you get a cold," it advises, "stay home in bed, Keep warm. Gargle to ease a sore throat. Take aspirin for the discomfort. None of this will cure the cold, but it will make you feel somewhat more comfortable while your body's natural defense mechanisms are building up enough steam to overcome the cold virus."

But don't think the medicos are giving up. Research goes on to find the cause and "possible cure" for colds and the AMA expresses the hope that: "Perhaps the answers may be found some day."

We may be sure they will let us know when that happens!

HELP WANTED
(but no takers)

A company which buys hundreds of thousands of hickory billets (split much like stove wood) sent buyers into a mountain state. There was plenty of hickory available, but no one would take the trouble to split it. It takes little or no skill, it isn't hard work, it pays well. But no one wanted the job; relief is too easy. As the buyers said, after spending weeks trying to hire workers, "Rocking seems to beat working."

All unemployment of course is hurtful, and except for the handicapped, IT IS NEEDLESS. If every man and woman out of work would take any job (and not hold out for the work he likes best, but ANY job) and then produce in it efficiently, he would bring costs down, and many more people would soon buy so many more things that more and more jobs would be required.

JUVENILE MOBS

The Fourth of July weekend this year, which in a more constructive time would have been devoted chiefly to the celebration of our national independence, brought with it a grim tale of rioting and looting by juvenile mobs in once-peaceful resorts all over America.

Despite the strange attempts of many commentators to brush this off as nothing new, or nothing to be alarmed about, in fact it deserves our deepest concern. It is true that rioting and looting, even by young people, are not new in history. Undoubtedly they were common, as one "reassuring" voice has said, in medieval Germany. But until recently they have not been common in America.

Little towns on the Great Lakes, on the seashore, or on the lovely wooded lakes of northern New England which in normal times never knew mass violence, were torn and gutted by young vandals screaming for thrills. Hundreds were injured and millions of dollars' worth of damage done.

Physical injuries heal and property damage can be repaired. But the injuries of character and the spirit, inflicted on themselves and on their companions by the desperate and confused youths who inspired these riots, may prove incurable.

These young people are not deeply evil. They are striking out blindly against a world and a country which seems to them to have given them no moral standards to live by and no purpose in life. By their acts they condemn all who taught them, by work or implication, that there is no real difference between right and wrong.

That is the void in their lives which we must fill. HLH.

Hal Boyle

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

From the air South Viet Nam looks in many places like a vast cemetery.

When you first fly over the countryside, you notice what at first look like bomb craters or old abandoned wells.

But no one could have dropped that many bombs or abandoned that many wells. What you are seeing are the tombs of some of Asia's unnumbered dead.

Tombs outnumber the rice paddies, where grow in vivid green the white grains that feed the country's living millions.

The tombs cluster by the hundreds in every patch of sandy outworn soil. In smaller numbers, they also stud the fertile rice paddies, as if the clamorous dead were draining the sustenance of the living.

Some of the tombs are new and handsome in gold and blue colors. But most are gray and old and lichen-encrusted, and the dead within them as forgotten as the faded, fallen leaves of a flame tree.

The poet Sara Teasdale wrote of "children's faces looking up, holding wonder like cup."

It is the faces of Vietnamese children that give most encouragement to Americans here. They are so bright-eyed, enthusiastic, and eager to accept change.

In the eyes of the middle-aged and elderly, you are depressed to see sometimes a veiled animosity or at best a dull passivity. Often you have the feeling they don't really see you at all — they are either looking through you or around you, as if you were not there at all.

But the children and the youths see you. They are interested in Americans and this is cheering, even though you may have to face up to the fact that what they are looking for may more often be a cigarette than help to political freedom.

The hardest thing for Americans to get used to over here is Vietnamese money. It is by far the shabbiest paper currency on earth, particularly in small denominations.

The largest bill is the 500-piastre note. This is worth about $7, and they are invariably clean and crisp and neat.

The average Vietnamese worker, who earns from less than 60 up to 85 piastres a day, rarely gets his hands on one. The 100- and 200-piastre notes are usually in pretty good shape, too.

The five, 10- and 20-piastre notes — and particularly the fives — are the financial language of the poor. The five-piastre note is so dirty, frayed, unsanitary and pawed over that you feel you may be contracting a nameless disease every time you accept one in change.

The situation in South Viet Nam is bewildering in many ways to thousands of the American military men stationed here. The customs of the people are so different, the conduct of the war itself is so different, from anything they have known before.

But there is also a great determination on the part of most to see this thing through.

I think the best expression of both this bewilderment and determination that I have heard was made by Capt. James W. Haerer, 33, a fighter pilot from Tampa, Fla.

During a flight we made together on a supply plane to a mountain fort, Haerer said:

"You don't always know what you're fighting over here —but you know it has to be fought."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- One of the most interesting relationships in the life of Adlai Stevenson was that with President Johnson. One an intellectual, the other a politician, they were closer than Adlai was with John F. Kennedy.

This was not always the case. In 1956, Stevenson was on much closer terms with the young Harvard - trained Senator than with Lyndon Johnson, Estes Kefauver or any of the big wheels of the Democratic party. Personally, he would have preferred Kennedy to Kefauver as his running-mate.

In 1956, furthermore, he had not been getting along at all well with Johnson, then Senate Majority Leader and a man who resented the Advisory Committee of the Democratic party, a group which included Stevenson, Kefauver, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Gov. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut.

Johnson and his friend, Speaker San Rayburn, both of Texas, boycotted the committee meetings and there was friction between Stevenson, the titular leader of the Democratic party, and Johnson, the dominating Democrat of the Senate.

SECRET ALLIANCE

But in 1960 an unusual political alliance, little known to the public, drew them together. It was an alliance to block the nomination of John F. Kennedy.

It was agreed that Stevenson would stay in the nomination race, not with the hope of winning, but in order to prevent Kennedy from winning on the first ballot.

Johnson had been a slow starter, had not been able to campaign because of his Senate duties. His only hope was a deadlock after which the convention would turn to him. Stevenson agreed to use his delegates to that end. Kennedy repeatedly asked him to withdraw and got quite irritated when he refused.

The strategy failed and, when Kennedy got the nomination, no one was more vigorous in campaigning for him than Adlai Stevenson.

But Adlai once told me that he suspected Kennedy resented his alliance with Lyndon and that this was one reason why he never became Secretary of State.

However, the Los Angeles alliance brought Stevenson, the intellectual, and Johnson, the practical politician, much closer together. And after Johnson assumed the presidency, they became even closer. Johnson invited Stevenson to every luncheon or dinner pertaining to foreign affairs, frequently phoned him in New York for advice.

I talked to Adlai in New York shortly after American troops landed in the Dominican Republic; And while he had always been opposed to intervention he confessed that, had he been in the President's shoes, his decision might have been similar.

He had come to Washington to attend a White House strategy meeting on Viet Nam and was sitting in the little green room just off the President's main office when the final message came through from Ambassador Tapley Bennett in Santo Domingo requesting troops.

Johnson placed a sheaf of telegrams in Adlai's hands. It would have taken 30 minutes to read them. Meanwhile the Ambassador was phoning Washington from under his desk with bullets whizzing through Embassy windows. Johnson gave the order to land troops.

Adlai was not happy about Dominican intervention, but never said so. He believed in playing on the Johnson team.

Thus there continued a genuine friendship between two strong men of opposite backgrounds and opposite personalities. When the President got the news of Adlai's death, he had trouble keeping back the tears.

JAPANESE AND SHRINERS

The joint meetings between Japanese and American Cabinet members were frank, healthy and a tribute to the ability of two one-time enemies to become friends. But there was one thing the visiting Japanese officials just couldn't understand -- the Shriners.

When the Japanese arrived at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington the Shriners' convention was just convening.

And the fastidious gentlemen from Tokyo, looking prim and proper, gaped with amazement at the men dressed in Arab fezzes, baggy pants and in one case riding a camel, who dominated the hotel lobby.

The highest officers in the Japanese government, usually the height of punctuality, were late for appointments because they could not take their eyes off this new breed of Americans.

They watched them pinch ladies, light matches and pretend to set fire to hotel carpets, and otherwise relax as only homo Americanus can when away from home.

The Japanese Cabinet members didn't ask questions. But from the look on their faces they must have wondered whether a new type of American had been lurking undiscovered on the Western Hemisphere during the years.

Note: A group of Africans was observing the Shriner Parade, dressed in their gaudy native garb. Evidently puzzled by the Shriner costumes, one of them turned to a bystander and asked: "Is Johnson still President?"

JAPANESE BOO-BOO

At the White House luncheon for the Japanese Cabinet there occurred such a boo-boo as seldom happens at state functions.

News of Adlai Stevenson's death came while the luncheon was in progress. President Johnson set aside his prepared speech and paid tribute to Stevenson. And Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shiina did the same.

But when the interpreter translated Shiina's speech, the English version put the Foreign Minister in the position of paying tribute to "The Late" Henry Cabot Lodge, who, of course, was not dead but who was Ambassador to the U. N. under Eisenhower.

President Johnson did not say a word in correction; Nor did any of the American guests. They figured the error was a slip of the tongue by the interpreter.

Top Crime Fighter Charges Underworld Syndicates Destroy Civil Rights of the Public

For more than four years one man actively directed a daily battle against the vast networks of the criminal syndicates. This was the task of Herbert J. Miller, until recently assistant attorney general of the U. S. in charge of the Criminal Division of the Justice Dept. Under him was the organized crime and rackets section. I asked him whether there really was a chance of ever cracking the Mafia-type underworld. Here is his reply:

By Herbert J. Miller

Washington, D. C.: -- We can assume that the most sacred duty of government is to guarantee to those who comprise it those rights which are the foundation of a free society. Freedom of worship, freedom of speech and the freedom to vote one's choice in an honest election are considered by most to be the bedrock upon which this republic is bottomed.

Two additional rights, however, which are just as basic and which are in daily conflict, are first, the right to be free from governmental oppression and, secondly, the right of a citizen to governmental protection from the depredations of the lawless against his person and property. Every reasonable precaution must be taken in the interest of both of these basic rights to assure that neither is unduly or unfairly subordinated.

If this balance is not achieved, the innocent will suffer and the citizens of this country will live the antithesis of freedom and liberty.

If a latter day Peter Zenger faces incarceration because his printed opinion was circulated for all to read to the discomfiture and rage of government hierarchy, we have lost part of the heritage that the founders of this government sought to guarantee to all of us. If one of us is imprisoned on charges fostered by a governmental official who finds it politically expedient to remove an individual from a position in which he can criticize the government, we have no different result.

The very thought of such governmental interference causes a visceral reaction of antagonism and outrage--as well it should, for this is our very heritage that is being subverted. This revulsion from these acts is primarily caused by the fact that they are actions by the government or, more properly, the acts of individuals cloaked with governmental power. These acts, in other words, make it "an unfair fight."

But, how do most people react when the same type of depredaton and deprivation of rights is visited upon a citizen by a single thug or a group of individual criminals acting in concert rather than by the government?

The reaction is one of instant condemnation and almost immediate concern with other matters. Why is it that this same deprivation of rights can be accomplished by the criminal underworld, and the average person upon hearing even the most gruesome facts has but a fleeting sense of anger? His anger is shortly followed by a sense of relief that he was not the victim.

What makes this even more puzzling is that, in a large measure, it was a governmental omission that permitted this act to take place against an innocent victim. Of course, the government can only use the tools at its disposal in combatting crime.

Council Has Quarterly Meet

NEW MADRID -- Seven clubs were represented at the quarterly meeting of the New Madrid County Home Economics Extension Council in the city hall at New Madrid, Tuesday afternoon, July 6. Council president, Mrs. Nelson Lumsden, presided and reported that Miss Rebecca Nistendirk, home agent, was in a Cape Girardeau hospital, but expected to be released soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buckles of Sikeston were to have given a demonstration of making pictures with glass, but Mr. Buckles was ill and unable to come. Instead, his brother, Mr. Eugene Buckles, gave a most interesting and informative talk on his work in hybridizing iris. He has developed several outstanding varieties which he has named and which will be available to gardeners.

Before raw varieties of flowers can be advertized as "all American" they must be tested in all areas of the country. Mr. Buckles tests new varieties of roses and chrysanthemums for this area.

He illustrated his talk with beautiful colored slides of his garden and of specimen flowers, answering questions as he went along.

Starting 18 years ago, when a friend gave him a handful of unnamed rhizomes, Mr. Buckles has gone on to develop a hobby that is creative and will continue to give therapeutic satisfaction throughout the years of his retirement.

The annual fall-get-together of county extension clubs was discussed and Mrs. Lumsden appointed Mrs. W. O. Burnett to get information in regard to an appropriate speaker.

Cards Even Season's Won-Lost Record

BY JOE BEAN AND RICHARD SMITH

ST. LOUIS -- It was "take me out to the ball park" here yesterday at Busch Stadium, as the Phillies and the Cardinals scrapped with the umpires--and a player from each squad was given the thumb--blasted three home runs, turned over a couple of neat double plays, and paraded players to the field in a seemingly endless array of relief pitchers and would-be hitters.

The Cards' Dick Groat and the Phils' Cookie Rojas took early showers, and after the dust around home plate and the pitcher's mound cleared--what with erratic Bo Belinsky on the hill--the Cardinals came out on top 3-1.

The win, number 45 for the sixth-place Redbirds, brought them up to .500 — the first time since June 9 — and moved them to within three games on the loss side of fifth-place Philadelphia.

Tracy Stallard, who got the starting nod from manager Red Schoendienst, pitched five-hit baseball before tiring in the eighth and giving way to Hal Woodeshick, but still picked up his seventh win of the season.

Belinsky, now 3-6, took the loss.

With two out, slugging right fielder Johnny Callison wasted no time in the first inning, Stallard's first offering sending to the right field roof.

Lou Brock bounced right back to knot the score at 1-1 in the bottom of the first, slapping Belinsky's first pitch into the flag atop right field at the 354 feet mark for his seventh home run. Dick Groat singled, took third on Gagliano's safety, and raced home on a passed ball.

Tim McCarver, the young Memphis, Tenn., catcher who throws right and bats left, added an insurance run with his eighth homer, bottom of the sixth, a blast that eased its way onto the pavilion roof in right field.

Phils manager Gene Mauch utilized 18 players — of the 25 on the club — in an effort to get a rally started, but in vain. Belinsky was followed to the mound by Burdette, Wagner, and Baldschun.

After the scoring was dispensed with in the first frame, the squads settled down to some good old time baseball, complete with a round of boos for the men in blue.

Dick Groat, leading off in the third, dropped a near-perfect punt down the third base line, but was thrown out — technically and literally. Belinsky's peg to Herrnstein at first caught the Cardinal shortstop by less than a gnat's eyelash, and in Groat's ensuing protest — with first base coach Becker and third base coach Schultz, plus manager Red Schoendienst chiming in — the ump's right thumb flew up and Groat was gone.

Groat threw a few parting remarks toward the field as he paced back and forth in the dugout, and was requested to leave the playing area.

Four innings later, Cookie Rojas — who had moved in from second base to take over the catching chores — exchanged differences of opinion with plate umpire Weyer. The discussion brought Gene Mauch to the plate, but sent him back to the Phils' dugout searching for another catcher to replace the ejected Rojas.

Bo Belinsky, until today owner of a spotless 2-0 record against the Cardinals, was bombed for eight hits, including circuit clouts by Brock and McCarver, walked two intentionally, and hit one batter.

Intent on adding a few more runs to the scoreboard, the Cards loaded the sacks in the bottom of the fourth, but all for naught, as Stallard slapped a rising line drive into the glove of rightfielder Johnny Callison for the third out.

The Phils came close, getting two men on with nobody out in the fourth, but Stallard fanned Richie Allen and Johnson, and then got Herrnstein on a bouncer to second.

In the sixth, Briggs reached third base when Brock, trying to double him up on Rojas' pop fly, threw the ball into the Phils bench. Callison drew a pass, and Richie Allen — the Phils' leading hitter at .323 — bounced into an around-the-horn double play.

In the top of the eighth, pinch-hitter Dick Stuart lifted Tracy Stallard's pitch to left field for the first out, but Briggs outlasted the tiring hurler and drew the fourth Philly walk. Southpaw Hal Woodeshick sauntered in from the left field bullpen, tossed one pitch to Cookie Rojas, and Buchek turned over the inning-ending double play.

Richie Allen walked in the top of the ninth after Callison popped out, but was forced at second by Johnson. Herrnstein bounced out to end the contest.

Fabick Downs Canvas Police Nose Security

Canvas Products battled with Fabick in the first game of the American League double-header. Fabick, the number one team in the league, traveled to the victory with a score of 9-2.

Bye hurled again for Fabick as he posted another triumph giving up just 2 hits--one a double by Ryan and the other a single by Sipult. Both hits were racked in the first.

After the beginning frame of play, the score was even 1-1. Fabick, holding Canvas to just one last run in the second, added one more to their roster also. The game remained tied 2-2 after the second. Inning 3 roused no action from Canvas, but brought 3 hits and 2 runs to Fabick. The fifth inning was the next in action line as Fabick made sure of their win as they scored 5 tallies.

McDowell gave up 7 hits and 9 runs to Fabick as he hurled for Canvas taking the defeat.

Police, in the nightcap of the evening at Farris Field, managed a victory over Security Federal with a 6-5 decision. Police, coming from a 3-0 deficit, managed to capture 5 runs in the fifth and one in the sixth to move up a notch in wins.

Police and Security National ended up the same in hits as each pitcher held the other team to 3.

One hit by Nelson of Security National was the only move toward a rally in the first from either team. Inning two saw a single by Moll of Police as the only step for action. Three in the third started things going as Hicks received a base hit and was driven in. Beck and Overby stepped on the plate for 2 more runs. In the fifth, Police came from behind to take the lead 5-3. In the top of the box, Anderson took a base on an error. Davis singles and Terrell boosted a double to drive both in. The next two batters took walks and both scored. Hicks and Nelson scored for Security in the bottom. Police grabbed the winning run when Jones scored after receiving a base on an error. Security was stumped in the last.

Luber served the ball for the victors. Overby was credited with the loss giving up 6 runs and 3 hits.

SPRING SHOES

"Please, Mr. Salesman, show me shoes,"
In whispers she'll confide,
"Of course a fit, but mainly style,
You see I'm still a bride."
"You understand," continues she.
"New shoes that catch his eyes."
The salesman thought. . . O, winter's gone,
And who is winter wise?
It was his line of work to please

Craig And Vines Rip Homers In National League Action

The National League had a wild Saturday night when the Jaycees and Lewis Furniture went into action in the first game and Legion took on A & B Oil Co. in the second. The Jaycee-Lewis bout, both teams having strong offense and defense, ended up in a 5-4, extra inning, close margin game with the Jaycees on top.

The highlight of the game was a home run by each team. Craig, for his first time at the plate for the Jaycees, gave the ball a ride over the center field scoreboard. Lewis also took home with their defeat a homer over the left field fence by the catcher, Vines. He belted the ball with Schatzley on third.

Boardman, relieving Jones in the sixth, took the win. Johnson was the second of 3 pitchers for Lewis. He was given credit with the loss.

The nightcap between Legion and A & B Oil Co. was a 6 hit ballgame — 3 by each team. Legion took the victory over A & B with a 3-1 margin.

The battle started off in the beginning frame tied, and it remained there until the last inning when Legion decided they better start pounding if they didn't want a tied bout. In that frame, Reynolds started off with a base hit. Shy, Myers, and Runnels received free bases next. Allen, Legion shortstop, and ace hitter for the night, stepped to the plate and rapped Scarbrough for a double driving in 3 runs. In the bottom of that frame, A & B was held to just one hit and one run, their first and last of the contest.

Scarbrough gave aid to Dame and surrendered to the ace pitcher, Howard. Both pitchers gave up 3 hits.

DIPLOMATIC STRATEGY

A former British ambassador to the United States, explaining to some friends that diplomacy consists in the art of covering up, offered a case in point. On a visit at a fine home where the hostess prided herself on her antique furniture, he was careful not to spill anything or mar the furnishings. But one day when he was reading alone before the fire, the slender gilt chair he was sitting on collapsed under him. Quietly and calmly, the ambassador broke the chair into little pieces and fed them to the fire.

His hostess wondered for a long time about what happened to her chair. ---Dan Bennett

Cards Even Season's Won-Lost Record

Sparkling Champs Slip by Phils 3-1

BY JOE BEAN AND RICHARD SMITH

ST. LOUIS -- It was "take me out to the ball park" here yesterday at Busch Stadium, as the Phillies and the Cardinals scrapped with the umpires--and a player from each squad was given the thumb--blasted three home runs, turned over a couple of neat double plays, and paraded players to the field in a seemingly endless array of relief pitchers and would-be hitters.

The Cards' Dick Groat and the Phils' Cookie Rojas took early showers, and after the dust around home plate and the pitcher's mound cleared--what with erratic Bo Belinsky on the hill--the Cardinals came out on top 3-1.

The win, number 45 for the sixth-place Redbirds, brought them up to .500 — the first time since June 9 — and moved them to within three games on the loss side of fifth-place Philadelphia.

Tracy Stallard, who got the starting nod from manager Red Schoendienst, pitched five-hit baseball before tiring in the eighth and giving way to Hal Woodeshick, but still picked up his seventh win of the season.

Belinsky, now 3-6, took the loss.

With two out, slugging right fielder Johnny Callison wasted no time in the first inning, Stallard's first offering sending to the right field roof.

Lou Brock bounced right back to knot the score at 1-1 in the bottom of the first, slapping Belinsky's first pitch into the flag atop right field at the 354 feet mark for his seventh home run. Dick Groat singled, took third on Gagliano's safety, and raced home on a passed ball.

Tim McCarver, the young Memphis, Tenn., catcher who throws right and bats left, added an insurance run with his eighth homer, bottom of the sixth, a blast that eased its way onto the pavilion roof in right field.

Phils manager Gene Mauch utilized 18 players — of the 25 on the club — in an effort to get a rally started, but in vain. Belinsky was followed to the mound by Burdette, Wagner, and Baldschun.

After the scoring was dispensed with in the first frame, the squads settled down to some good old time baseball, complete with a round of boos for the men in blue.

Dick Groat, leading off in the third, dropped a near-perfect punt down the third base line, but was thrown out — technically and literally. Belinsky's peg to Herrnstein at first caught the Cardinal shortstop by less than a gnat's eyelash, and in Groat's ensuing protest — with first base coach Becker and third base coach Schultz, plus manager Red Schoendienst chiming in — the ump's right thumb flew up and Groat was gone.

Groat threw a few parting remarks toward the field as he paced back and forth in the dugout, and was requested to leave the playing area.

Four innings later, Cookie Rojas — who had moved in from second base to take over the catching chores — exchanged differences of opinion with plate umpire Weyer. The discussion brought Gene Mauch to the plate, but sent him back to the Phils' dugout searching for another catcher to replace the ejected Rojas.

Bo Belinsky, until today owner of a spotless 2-0 record against the Cardinals, was bombed for eight hits, including circuit clouts by Brock and McCarver, walked two intentionally, and hit one batter.

Intent on adding a few more runs to the scoreboard, the Cards loaded the sacks in the bottom of the fourth, but all for naught, as Stallard slapped a rising line drive into the glove of rightfielder Johnny Callison for the third out.

The Phils came close, getting two men on with nobody out in the fourth, but Stallard fanned Richie Allen and Johnson, and then got Herrnstein on a bouncer to second.

In the sixth, Briggs reached third base when Brock, trying to double him up on Rojas' pop fly, threw the ball into the Phils bench. Callison drew a pass, and Richie Allen — the Phils' leading hitter at .323 — bounced into an around-the-horn double play.

In the top of the eighth, pinch-hitter Dick Stuart lifted Tracy Stallard's pitch to left field for the first out, but Briggs outlasted the tiring hurler and drew the fourth Philly walk. Southpaw Hal Woodeshick sauntered in from the left field bullpen, tossed one pitch to Cookie Rojas, and Buchek turned over the inning-ending double play.

Richie Allen walked in the top of the ninth after Callison popped out, but was forced at second by Johnson. Herrnstein bounced out to end the contest.

Fabick Downs Canvas Police Nose Security

Canvas Products battled with Fabick in the first game of the American League double-header. Fabick, the number one team in the league, traveled to the victory with a score of 9-2.

Bye hurled again for Fabick as he posted another triumph giving up just 2 hits--one a double by Ryan and the other a single by Sipult. Both hits were racked in the first.

After the beginning frame of play, the score was even 1-1. Fabick, holding Canvas to just one last run in the second, added one more to their roster also. The game remained tied 2-2 after the second. Inning 3 roused no action from Canvas, but brought 3 hits and 2 runs to Fabick. The fifth inning was the next in action line as Fabick made sure of their win as they scored 5 tallies.

McDowell gave up 7 hits and 9 runs to Fabick as he hurled for Canvas taking the defeat.

Police, in the nightcap of the evening at Farris Field, managed a victory over Security Federal with a 6-5 decision. Police, coming from a 3-0 deficit, managed to capture 5 runs in the fifth and one in the sixth to move up a notch in wins.

Police and Security National ended up the same in hits as each pitcher held the other team to 3.

One hit by Nelson of Security National was the only move toward a rally in the first from either team. Inning two saw a single by Moll of Police as the only step for action. Three in the third started things going as Hicks received a base hit and was driven in. Beck and Overby stepped on the plate for 2 more runs. In the fifth, Police came from behind to take the lead 5-3. In the top of the box, Anderson took a base on an error. Davis singles and Terrell boosted a double to drive both in. The next two batters took walks and both scored. Hicks and Nelson scored for Security in the bottom. Police grabbed the winning run when Jones scored after receiving a base on an error. Security was stumped in the last.

Luber served the ball for the victors. Overby was credited with the loss giving up 6 runs and 3 hits.

SPRING SHOES

"Please, Mr. Salesman, show me shoes,"
In whispers she'll confide,
"Of course a fit, but mainly style,
You see I'm still a bride."
"You understand," continues she.
"New shoes that catch his eyes."
The salesman thought. . . O, winter's gone,
And who is winter wise?
It was his line of work to please
The lady fair on bended knees.

Craig And Vines Rip Homers In National League Action

The National League had a wild Saturday night when the Jaycees and Lewis Furniture went into action in the first game and Legion took on A & B Oil Co. in the second. The Jaycee-Lewis bout, both teams having strong offense and defense, ended up in a 5-4, extra inning, close margin game with the Jaycees on top.

The highlight of the game was a home run by each team. Craig, for his first time at the plate for the Jaycees, gave the ball a ride over the center field scoreboard. Lewis also took home with their defeat a homer over the left field fence by the catcher, Vines. He belted the ball with Schatzley on third.

Boardman, relieving Jones in the sixth, took the win. Johnson was the second of 3 pitchers for Lewis. He was given credit with the loss.

The nightcap between Legion and A & B Oil Co. was a 6 hit ballgame — 3 by each team. Legion took the victory over A & B with a 3-1 margin.

The battle started off in the beginning frame tied, and it remained there until the last inning when Legion decided they better start pounding if they didn't want a tied bout. In that frame, Reynolds started off with a base hit. Shy, Myers, and Runnels received free bases next. Allen, Legion shortstop, and ace hitter for the night, stepped to the plate and rapped Scarbrough for a double driving in 3 runs. In the bottom of that frame, A & B was held to just one hit and one run, their first and last of the contest.

Scarbrough gave aid to Dame and surrendered to the ace pitcher, Howard. Both pitchers gave up 3 hits.

DIPLOMATIC STRATEGY

A former British ambassador to the United States, explaining to some friends that diplomacy consists in the art of covering up, offered a case in point. On a visit at a fine home where the hostess prided herself on her antique furniture, he was careful not to spill anything or mar the furnishings. But one day when he was reading alone before the fire, the slender gilt chair he was sitting on collapsed under him. Quietly and calmly, the ambassador broke the chair into little pieces and fed them to the fire.

His hostess wondered for a long time about what happened to her chair. ---Dan Bennett

Air view of construction on the clover leaf on Interstate 55 at Scott City.

I-55 Work Is Progressing

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Construction on Interstate Highway 55 from Benton to Scott City is progressing, but no completion date for the project has been set, W. D. Carney of Sikeston, District 10 engineer, said.

He reported construction of the extension interchange at Scott City will continue throughout the summer. It is expected, the district engineer said, that the interchange will be one of the last parts of the Scott City-Benton section to be competed.

Grading operations on the shoulders of the 10-mile stretch are continuing. Paving was completed months ago. Carney said the shoulder work is nearing completion and grass seeding will be started soon.

Construction also is continuing on another uncompleted section of I-55, from a point east of Sikeston southward 21 miles to New Madrid. When the Scott City-Benton and Sikeston-New Madrid links are completed there will be an unbroken stretch of I-55 from Fruitland to New Madrid, a distance of approximately 50 miles.

The Scott City interchange is sufficiently completed to indicate the pattern it will take when finished.

Viet Cong Counting on Victory Not Negotiation

Editor's Note: This is the third and final article in a series of questions and answers about the war in Viet Nam.

SAIGON (AP) — Here are answers to some of the questions you may have been asking about the war in Viet Nam:

Q. Are there any indications in Saigon that some kind of negotiations might be foreseeable?

A. No. Sources with excellent political contacts in Hanoi say the Hanoi regime is not interested in establishing contacts with Saigon and Washington, much less in holding talks. The Viet Cong has mounted a major monsoon offensive in which the apparent objective is military victory, not negotiation. So far, the Viet Cong has done well, leaving little reason for it to be interested in negotiating anything.

Q. As things stand, could the Viet Cong win a military victory?

A. Not in the sense of being able to push American forces into the sea. American forces standing by outside Viet Nam, and the U.S. 7th Fleet, could presumably prevent the taking of large towns. But in terms of controlling most of South Viet Nam's population, the Viet Cong is likely to make further strides. It is less interested in real estate and cities than in people. Critics of American policies have noted that in the Indochina War the French continued to hold Hanoi and all Viet Nam's major cities until they were finally bled dry in the jungle and forced into what amounted to a political surrender. This appears to be the present Viet Cong strategy.

Q. How long is this likely to go on?

A. U.S. officials say that "the battle has just been joined" and shun predictions. All observers feel there will be dramatic military developments this summer, but few feel this campaign will end the war. Fighting cold go on for years.

Q. How likely is this to lead to World War III?

A. So far, the Soviet Union has participated only slightly in the war. Communist China has sent weapons and equipment to North Viet Nam. No Chinese advisers are known to have joined Viet Cong troops despite occasional rumors to the contrary. No Chinese units are known to have moved into North Viet Nam. The United States has avoided bombing North Vietnamese cities or engaging China in any military way, and American escalation is likely to be kept within sharp limits. Both America and its Asian enemies seem embarked on a local "meatgrinder" war aimed at exhausting the other side. But Peking could change current policies at any time, and no officials in Saigon have ruled out the possibility of World War III.

Q. What is the current American casualty rate?

A. It is approaching 100 killed, wounded and missing a week. This rate is expected to increase sharply as more American go into combat.

Q. Is it true, as U.S. officials say, that this is till a Vietnamese war in which America has only a supporting role?

A. Technically, yes. But without the massive infusions of U.S. troops and aid into Viet Nam, the nation would fall to the Communists in weeks or days. In this sense, South Viet Nam's contribution to its own war is increasingly symbolic, and the real war is American. The Vietnamese casualty rate is still far higher than the American, but this ratio is likely to change radically in the coming months.

Hear Report On School Inspection

CHARLESTON -- The R-1 School District Board of Education held its regular meeting and among other items of business, heard the area supervisor's report on his inspection of the school system.

In other major business the board discussed ways to improve bus transportation services; hired three teachers and released two others; and decided to purchase a lot on which the new carpentry class can build a house.

The area supervisor's report indicated several deficiencies in the R-1 system. One of these, a need for additional buildings so students can be grouped for better instruction, will be taken care of under the building program currently under way, the report noted.

Other items needed, the report said, are special education for the retarded and speech correction education, both at the secondary level; smaller study halls for more effective study; half-time librarians at the Anniston and Lincoln units; and additional college credits by some of the personnel acquired in recent reorganizations.

Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. reported the bus system operation cost $66,750 last year, of which $66,200 will be reimbursed by the state during the coming school year.

Pierce also reported that on the basis of balances July 1 and closed books for the school year ended in May, the revised budget for 1965-66 shows a deficit of only $59,000 instead of the $89,000 predicted during the bond issue campaign in February. The savings resulted from economies due to reorganization with Texas Bend, Thompson Bend and Bertrand, Pierce said.

The question of providing better bus service was tabled for discussion at a special meeting to be called in the near future. Superintendent Pierce was instructed to work out alternative proposals for the board to study and pass upon.

The board voted to hire Charles Telker as a teacher of science in the junior high school; Bill Wills to teach sixth grade; and Carla Jo Wills to teach fourth grade. Richard Reed and John Hunt were released from contracts to take other jobs.

Superintendent Pierce was instructed to prepare a list of local lots and their prices so the board could select a site for the building trades course house, which will be built during the school year by enrollees. Pierce said drawing for the house would be made by the drafting class at the Sikeston area trade school, in which CHS participates, wiring would be done by the electricity class, and carpentry would be done by the local students under the supervision of their instructor.

The only other major item of business was the decision by the board to hold an auction, sometime during the fall at which time some buildings, property and equipment acquired in reorganizations could be disposed of.

The board also decided to have students at Charleston High School to provide their own padlocks for the hall lockers, eliminating the 50 cent key deposit from the fee structure.

Tabled for a future meeting was the question of a legal name for the school district.

Fine Speaks At Kennett

KENNETT -- Lee C. Fine, director of the Missouri State Park system, was guest speaker for the Friday noon meeting of the Kennett Lions Club.

Fine, who was employed by the Missouri State Park Board last January to succeed Joseph Jaeger, Jr. as director, is a native of New Madrid.

He is a graduate of the University of Michigan Forestry School and attended the University of Missouri three years. After leaving college he devoted his working life to outdoor work of the type which he is now doing as superviser of the State Park system.

In June of 1941 he went to work with the Missouri Conservation Commission as a district forester at Sullivan. He also served as forester at Eminence, Camdenton and Ellington. For the five years preceeding 1965 he was assistant state forester in charge of forest fire control, stationed in the Conservation Commission headquarters in Jefferson City.

Fine has stated that "with the help of the State Park Board and the staff of the department I expect to make the State Park system second to none in the United States."

Air view of construction on the clover leaf on Interstate 55 at Scott City.

I-55 Work Is Progressing

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Construction on Interstate Highway 55 from Benton to Scott City is progressing, but no completion date for the project has been set, W. D. Carney of Sikeston, District 10 engineer, said.

He reported construction of the extension interchange at Scott City will continue throughout the summer. It is expected, the district engineer said, that the interchange will be one of the last parts of the Scott City-Benton section to be competed.

Grading operations on the shoulders of the 10-mile stretch are continuing. Paving was completed months ago. Carney said the shoulder work is nearing completion and grass seeding will be started soon.

Construction also is continuing on another uncompleted section of I-55, from a point east of Sikeston southward 21 miles to New Madrid. When the Scott City-Benton and Sikeston-New Madrid links are completed there will be an unbroken stretch of I-55 from Fruitland to New Madrid, a distance of approximately 50 miles.

The Scott City interchange is sufficiently completed to indicate the pattern it will take when finished.

Viet Cong Counting on Victory Not Negotiation

Editor's Note: This is the third and final article in a series of questions and answers about the war in Viet Nam.

SAIGON (AP) — Here are answers to some of the questions you may have been asking about the war in Viet Nam:

Q. Are there any indications in Saigon that some kind of negotiations might be foreseeable?

A. No. Sources with excellent political contacts in Hanoi say the Hanoi regime is not interested in establishing contacts with Saigon and Washington, much less in holding talks. The Viet Cong has mounted a major monsoon offensive in which the apparent objective is military victory, not negotiation. So far, the Viet Cong has done well, leaving little reason for it to be interested in negotiating anything.

Q. As things stand, could the Viet Cong win a military victory?

A. Not in the sense of being able to push American forces into the sea. American forces standing by outside Viet Nam, and the U.S. 7th Fleet, could presumably prevent the taking of large towns. But in terms of controlling most of South Viet Nam's population, the Viet Cong is likely to make further strides. It is less interested in real estate and cities than in people. Critics of American policies have noted that in the Indochina War the French continued to hold Hanoi and all Viet Nam's major cities until they were finally bled dry in the jungle and forced into what amounted to a political surrender. This appears to be the present Viet Cong strategy.

Q. How long is this likely to go on?

A. U.S. officials say that "the battle has just been joined" and shun predictions. All observers feel there will be dramatic military developments this summer, but few feel this campaign will end the war. Fighting cold go on for years.

Q. How likely is this to lead to World War III?

A. So far, the Soviet Union has participated only slightly in the war. Communist China has sent weapons and equipment to North Viet Nam. No Chinese advisers are known to have joined Viet Cong troops despite occasional rumors to the contrary. No Chinese units are known to have moved into North Viet Nam. The United States has avoided bombing North Vietnamese cities or engaging China in any military way, and American escalation is likely to be kept within sharp limits. Both America and its Asian enemies seem embarked on a local "meatgrinder" war aimed at exhausting the other side. But Peking could change current policies at any time, and no officials in Saigon have ruled out the possibility of World War III.

Q. What is the current American casualty rate?

A. It is approaching 100 killed, wounded and missing a week. This rate is expected to increase sharply as more American go into combat.

Q. Is it true, as U.S. officials say, that this is till a Vietnamese war in which America has only a supporting role?

A. Technically, yes. But without the massive infusions of U.S. troops and aid into Viet Nam, the nation would fall to the Communists in weeks or days. In this sense, South Viet Nam's contribution to its own war is increasingly symbolic, and the real war is American. The Vietnamese casualty rate is still far higher than the American, but this ratio is likely to change radically in the coming months.

Hear Report On School Inspection

CHARLESTON -- The R-1 School District Board of Education held its regular meeting and among other items of business, heard the area supervisor's report on his inspection of the school system.

In other major business the board discussed ways to improve bus transportation services; hired three teachers and released two others; and decided to purchase a lot on which the new carpentry class can build a house.

The area supervisor's report indicated several deficiencies in the R-1 system. One of these, a need for additional buildings so students can be grouped for better instruction, will be taken care of under the building program currently under way, the report noted.

Other items needed, the report said, are special education for the retarded and speech correction education, both at the secondary level; smaller study halls for more effective study; half-time librarians at the Anniston and Lincoln units; and additional college credits by some of the personnel acquired in recent reorganizations.

Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. reported the bus system operation cost $66,750 last year, of which $66,200 will be reimbursed by the state during the coming school year.

Pierce also reported that on the basis of balances July 1 and closed books for the school year ended in May, the revised budget for 1965-66 shows a deficit of only $59,000 instead of the $89,000 predicted during the bond issue campaign in February. The savings resulted from economies due to reorganization with Texas Bend, Thompson Bend and Bertrand, Pierce said.

The question of providing better bus service was tabled for discussion at a special meeting to be called in the near future. Superintendent Pierce was instructed to work out alternative proposals for the board to study and pass upon.

The board voted to hire Charles Telker as a teacher of science in the junior high school; Bill Wills to teach sixth grade; and Carla Jo Wills to teach fourth grade. Richard Reed and John Hunt were released from contracts to take other jobs.

Superintendent Pierce was instructed to prepare a list of local lots and their prices so the board could select a site for the building trades course house, which will be built during the school year by enrollees. Pierce said drawing for the house would be made by the drafting class at the Sikeston area trade school, in which CHS participates, wiring would be done by the electricity class, and carpentry would be done by the local students under the supervision of their instructor.

The only other major item of business was the decision by the board to hold an auction, sometime during the fall at which time some buildings, property and equipment acquired in reorganizations could be disposed of.

The board also decided to have students at Charleston High School to provide their own padlocks for the hall lockers, eliminating the 50 cent key deposit from the fee structure.

Tabled for a future meeting was the question of a legal name for the school district.

Fine Speaks At Kennett

KENNETT -- Lee C. Fine, director of the Missouri State Park system, was guest speaker for the Friday noon meeting of the Kennett Lions Club.

Fine, who was employed by the Missouri State Park Board last January to succeed Joseph Jaeger, Jr. as director, is a native of New Madrid.

He is a graduate of the University of Michigan Forestry School and attended the University of Missouri three years. After leaving college he devoted his working life to outdoor work of the type which he is now doing as superviser of the State Park system.

In June of 1941 he went to work with the Missouri Conservation Commission as a district forester at Sullivan. He also served as forester at Eminence, Camdenton and Ellington. For the five years preceeding 1965 he was assistant state forester in charge of forest fire control, stationed in the Conservation Commission headquarters in Jefferson City.

Fine has stated that "with the help of the State Park Board and the staff of the department I expect to make the State Park system second to none in the United States."

Cotton Makes Good Progress

HAYTI -- Cotton crop made excellent progress in Southeast Missouri. Fields are generally free of weeds and grass. There are isolated reports of spraying for insect control.

Early fields in the South Central region were laid by this week, according to the consumer and marketing service, United States Department of Agriculture. Cotton fruited satisfactorily. Scattered showers and hot weather stimulated plant development. Farmers chopped Johnson grass and weeds in some fields but generally fields are clean. Routine spray programs continued in many localities but insect infestations were minor.

Spot cotton trading decreased from a week earlier. Prices were fairly steady. Demand was fair for middling and lower grades with 1-1/32 inches and longer staple lengths. Farmers sold small-volume cotton loan equities and netted from $1 to $3 per bale.

Domestic mill buying was mostly for prompt shipment. Purchases were confined mostly to fill-in needs. Export demand weakened. Some inquiries were received from European spinners. Sales were small in volume.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: As I type this letter tears are streaming down my cheeks. No, I have not been jilted. It's worse than that. For the fourth time today, the woman whose desk is next to mine has sprayed herself with the world's most sickening perfume. She proudly boasts that she makes the perfume herself by combining three different scents and adding a bit of vanilla extract.

I'm not the only one who suffers. The woman who sits on the other side of me gets nauseated after every spraying. Right now she's green as grass.

The thing that burns me up is that the sprayer went to the supervisor three months ago and asked that cigar smoking be prohibited because it make her sick.

At this moment I'm sneezing and my head is beginning to ache. I'm not a troublemaker, Ann, but I think something should be done. What do you suggest?--VICTIM

Dear Vic: You could dramatize your problem by falling on the floor and calling for an oxygen pump the next time the perfume lady sprays--but I'd like to suggest a more practical and realistic approach. Tell the woman you are allergic to her perfume and if she'd settle for a dab behind her ears and not spray the office you'd appreciate it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school student who will be a senior next fall. Please tell me what I can do to make my last year livable. If I don't get asked for a date before I graduate I'll just die.

I'm not too tall or too fat or ugly. Kids like me--both girls and boys--but my trouble is I'm the pal type, the big sister. During the last month of school three guys asked me who to take to the junior prom. When the fourth one asked I couldn't stand it any longer so I answered in a half-joking way, "What's the matter with ME?" The fellow laughed and said, "You've got to be kidding."

Maybe I got off to a bad start by playing baseball and football with the guys in the neighborhood when I was in grade school. I quit last year when my mother said it was disgraceful. I need your help and I need it now. Please don't fail me.--PLATONIC

Dear Platonic: I'm glad you finally gave up the sand-lot routine. What fellow wants to get romantic with a third baseman?

Start the new school year by inviting one fellow at a time to your house to study--or just to talk. A platonic friendship is often the best springboard for a truly meaningful relationship. Remember that love is friendship that catches fire.

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin considers herself a nonconformist. I've always thought she was plenty far out and just plain brassy. Recently she did something that has the family divided into two camps.

Mary (not her real name) is graduating from nursing school soon. She is also planning to marry in a few months. My invitation to her graduation arrived in the mail yesterday. Attached was a note saying "Stuck for a gift idea? Here's help. Go to the linen department of the such-and-such department sotre and ask for Miss Williams. She has the gift all ready. It is a set of monogrammed towels. The price is $7.98. Thank you in advance."

What is your opinion of this? --ON THE SPOT

Dear On: To use your words I would describe it as "plenty far out and just plain brassy." Ignore the instructions and send whatever you wish.

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Union Accepts Florsheim Bid

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Union workers have accepted a tentative offer from Florsheim Shoe Co. to set up operations at the International Shoe Co. plant here.

Ellis Baker, national representative for Local 125A, United Shoe Workers of America, said the decision came in a unanimous standing vote Thursday evening.

International Shoe plans to end its present men's shoe manufacturing operation in Cape Girardeau.

There reportedly are good chances that Florsheim, a division of International, will begin operations at the plant.

Baker said the vote Thursday night followed four to five months of negotiations with International Shoe officials looking to continuation of manufacturing operations at the plant.

The final decision whether to locate here now rests with Florsheim and International Shoe management, he said.

The local 125A official said the tentative offer accepted by the union members did not concern working conditions or wages.

Buried cable:
$10,000,000 in new life insurance for your telephone this year

Put telephone wires underground and you've put them in a safe place. Safe from wind, rain, hot weather, cold weather, stormy weather. Safer from the slow death of ordinary weathering. Safer from man-caused damage, too. All around safer from the kinds of trouble which most often affect the talkability, hearability and dependability of your phone service.
That's why this year Southwestern Bell is spending $10 million burying hundreds of additional miles of telephone cable underground. In effect, buying life insurance for your telephone service.
There's another tangible benefit, too. Because of this buried cable construction program, new jobs will be created. Some in the telephone business (which already has 52,179 persons on the payroll), but most important, an estimated 500 new jobs among the hundreds of firms which sell supplies, services and materials to the telephone company.
This is a 1965 communications bonus from Southwestern Bell. Part of a massive construction effort (our biggest ever) to make the world's best telephone service even more useful, dependable, convenient and valuable seven days a week, good weather and bad.

For Today From The Upper Room

"Be faithful unto death, and I will give you the crown of life." (Revelation 2:10, RSV)

PRAYER: O God, we thank Thee that Thou dost hear us. We come to Thee, for we need Thy power and direction in the way that Thou hast laid out for us. Help us to be conquerors to be faithful to Thee as Jesus was faithful when he lived on the earth. We ask it in His name and for His sake. Amen.

Cotton Makes Good Progress

HAYTI -- Cotton crop made excellent progress in Southeast Missouri. Fields are generally free of weeds and grass. There are isolated reports of spraying for insect control.

Early fields in the South Central region were laid by this week, according to the consumer and marketing service, United States Department of Agriculture. Cotton fruited satisfactorily. Scattered showers and hot weather stimulated plant development. Farmers chopped Johnson grass and weeds in some fields but generally fields are clean. Routine spray programs continued in many localities but insect infestations were minor.

Spot cotton trading decreased from a week earlier. Prices were fairly steady. Demand was fair for middling and lower grades with 1-1/32 inches and longer staple lengths. Farmers sold small-volume cotton loan equities and netted from $1 to $3 per bale.

Domestic mill buying was mostly for prompt shipment. Purchases were confined mostly to fill-in needs. Export demand weakened. Some inquiries were received from European spinners. Sales were small in volume.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: As I type this letter tears are streaming down my cheeks. No, I have not been jilted. It's worse than that. For the fourth time today, the woman whose desk is next to mine has sprayed herself with the world's most sickening perfume. She proudly boasts that she makes the perfume herself by combining three different scents and adding a bit of vanilla extract.

I'm not the only one who suffers. The woman who sits on the other side of me gets nauseated after every spraying. Right now she's green as grass.

The thing that burns me up is that the sprayer went to the supervisor three months ago and asked that cigar smoking be prohibited because it make her sick.

At this moment I'm sneezing and my head is beginning to ache. I'm not a troublemaker, Ann, but I think something should be done. What do you suggest?--VICTIM

Dear Vic: You could dramatize your problem by falling on the floor and calling for an oxygen pump the next time the perfume lady sprays--but I'd like to suggest a more practical and realistic approach. Tell the woman you are allergic to her perfume and if she'd settle for a dab behind her ears and not spray the office you'd appreciate it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school student who will be a senior next fall. Please tell me what I can do to make my last year livable. If I don't get asked for a date before I graduate I'll just die.

I'm not too tall or too fat or ugly. Kids like me--both girls and boys--but my trouble is I'm the pal type, the big sister. During the last month of school three guys asked me who to take to the junior prom. When the fourth one asked I couldn't stand it any longer so I answered in a half-joking way, "What's the matter with ME?" The fellow laughed and said, "You've got to be kidding."

Maybe I got off to a bad start by playing baseball and football with the guys in the neighborhood when I was in grade school. I quit last year when my mother said it was disgraceful. I need your help and I need it now. Please don't fail me.--PLATONIC

Dear Platonic: I'm glad you finally gave up the sand-lot routine. What fellow wants to get romantic with a third baseman?

Start the new school year by inviting one fellow at a time to your house to study--or just to talk. A platonic friendship is often the best springboard for a truly meaningful relationship. Remember that love is friendship that catches fire.

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin considers herself a nonconformist. I've always thought she was plenty far out and just plain brassy. Recently she did something that has the family divided into two camps.

Mary (not her real name) is graduating from nursing school soon. She is also planning to marry in a few months. My invitation to her graduation arrived in the mail yesterday. Attached was a note saying "Stuck for a gift idea? Here's help. Go to the linen department of the such-and-such department sotre and ask for Miss Williams. She has the gift all ready. It is a set of monogrammed towels. The price is $7.98. Thank you in advance."

What is your opinion of this? --ON THE SPOT

Dear On: To use your words I would describe it as "plenty far out and just plain brassy." Ignore the instructions and send whatever you wish.

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Union Accepts Florsheim Bid

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Union workers have accepted a tentative offer from Florsheim Shoe Co. to set up operations at the International Shoe Co. plant here.

Ellis Baker, national representative for Local 125A, United Shoe Workers of America, said the decision came in a unanimous standing vote Thursday evening.

International Shoe plans to end its present men's shoe manufacturing operation in Cape Girardeau.

There reportedly are good chances that Florsheim, a division of International, will begin operations at the plant.

Baker said the vote Thursday night followed four to five months of negotiations with International Shoe officials looking to continuation of manufacturing operations at the plant.

The final decision whether to locate here now rests with Florsheim and International Shoe management, he said.

The local 125A official said the tentative offer accepted by the union members did not concern working conditions or wages.

Delay Hearing On Annexation

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A hearing on the city's declaratory judgment suit to annex an additional 13 square miles of territory was postponed in mid-afternoon Thursday until Sept. 22.

The hearing had been scheduled to start Friday in Common Pleas Court.

Judge W. O. Statler ordered the continuance on the oral motion of James R. McHaney, attorney for persons opposing the annexation.

McHaney requested the action, he said, when he was unable to get answers to a number of questions regarding the city from City Attorney Stephen N. Limbaugh.

The city attorney objected to the motion for continuance, but Judge Statler overruled him and set the dates for the hearing from Sept. 22 to 24.

Five-County Poverty Organization Blows Up

VIENNA, Ill. -- The Shawnee Development Council -- a five county organization designed to guide the war on poverty program -- may have died Wednesday, just four days after its birth.

A meeting held in Vienna Wednesday and attended by representatives from Alexander Pulaski, Union, Massac, and Johnson counties, disintegrated when the Alexander County delegation walked out after a dispute over where offices of the five-county director of the program should be located.

At the same time, Ray Meisenheimer, who has been employed as director-coordinator of the Alexander County Community Action program, announced that he had resigned, effective immediately.

Meisenheimer's resignation was submitted before the Wednesday meeting and he said that he had agreed to attend the Vienna meeting and continued to guide efforts to organize the five-county program until a replacement could be secured. Meisenheimer had been paid a salary of $100 per week by the City of Cairo while serving as director-coordinator of the program.

He said the Vienna meeting had progressed nicely until the matter of location of the director's office arose.

"Cairo authorized our delegation to offer at no cost to the program a suite of two offices, equipped with furniture, utilities supplied, a janitor service, and air conditioning," Meisenheimer said. "The only other location offered was an abandoned school building at Karnak that would have to be equipped with utilities and renovated before it could be used as an office."

Pulaski, Union, Johnson, and Massac counties all voted to locate the office in the Karnak building and it was at this point the Alexander County delegation left the meeting.

Meisenheimer said it now appeared the Shawnee Development Council would not be organized as a five-county unit. He gave no indication about what course would be pursued in the future.

This was the third meeting of the five county group to organize into a regional unit. Some progress was made in the two previous meetings, although undercurrents of dissension over location of the director's office were detected in the meeting held in Cairo last Friday.

"We had been instructed by our county Community Action Committee to stand fast for having the director's office located here," Meisenheimer said. "We feel it should be located in the center of the poverty stricken area and past experience has proved that when offices are located further upstate, we receive only limited benefits."

He pointed out that 25 percent of the population in Alexander County was classified as poverty stricken, and that 26 per cent of Pulaski County was in this classification.

In comparison, only four per cent of Union County, seven per cent of Johnson County, and nine per cent of Massac County, are in this classification.

Members of the Alexander County delegation expressed surprise that the Pulaski County delegation did not offer a site for the office or support the Alexander County offer, since these two counties contain the vast majority of people on poverty rolls in the five-county area.

What effect this disruption of the Shawnee Development Council would have on processing of proposals submitted for approval by the individual counties could not be immediately determined.

Valuation Rises In New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- New Madrid County's valuation is within one tenth of one per cent of the 1964 valuation for tax purposes, according to Jesse H. Wilkins, County Clerk. Wilkins has received certification from the State Tax Commission approving the values for 1965, as turned in by Assessor, Preston Utterback.

Real estate values are down $600,000, and personal values are down some $370,000, while the merchants and manufacturers values were upped by $2000, and railroads and utilities increased by $870,000.

County Rep. Gene Copeland and County Clerk Wilkins teamed up put the brakes on annual increases on farm lands and city lots by furnishing the State Tax Commission with statistics from 1951 to 1964 on increases given New Madrid County.

It was shown by their statistics that farm lands had increased in value by 153% over the 14-year period for tax purposes, which was an average increase of 10.99% per year for 14 years. It was further shown that even though the population had decreased by more than 25% that personal property values for tax purposes had held its own and had been increased by 22%.

Apparently the State Tax Commission, with some new members on the Commission, feels inclined to agree that New Madrid County values have increased sufficiently to meet the 30% of actual value, at least for the time being.

With the new values certified to the clerk, the County Court proceeded to make the tax levies for 1965, and with the state tax being lowered to 6 cents from 7 cents, the Court set the same rates for county purposes as for the prior year; namely county revenue 40¢, johnson grass control 5¢, library 10¢, health center 10¢, and road and bridge 30¢, all rates being based on $100,00 valuation. The average school rate is $2.73.

The various school tax rates furnished the County Clerk are: Sikeston R-6 $4, up 16¢; Dogwood R-2 $3.40, up $1.40; Portageville R-1 $2.85, no change; Risco R-2 $2.20, no change; Parma R-3 $2.50, up 5¢; Lilbourn R-4 $2.50, no change; Matthews R-5 $2.50, no change; New Madrid R - 6 $3.00, no change; Morehouse C-12 $2.95, up 2¢; Gideon 37 $3.00, no change; and Higgerson 24 $1.10, up 5 cents.

Delay Hearing On Annexation

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A hearing on the city's declaratory judgment suit to annex an additional 13 square miles of territory was postponed in mid-afternoon Thursday until Sept. 22.

The hearing had been scheduled to start Friday in Common Pleas Court.

Judge W. O. Statler ordered the continuance on the oral motion of James R. McHaney, attorney for persons opposing the annexation.

McHaney requested the action, he said, when he was unable to get answers to a number of questions regarding the city from City Attorney Stephen N. Limbaugh.

The city attorney objected to the motion for continuance, but Judge Statler overruled him and set the dates for the hearing from Sept. 22 to 24.

Q—On what continent is the world's coldest temperature found?

Five-County Poverty Organization Blows Up

VIENNA, Ill. -- The Shawnee Development Council -- a five county organization designed to guide the war on poverty program -- may have died Wednesday, just four days after its birth.

A meeting held in Vienna Wednesday and attended by representatives from Alexander Pulaski, Union, Massac, and Johnson counties, disintegrated when the Alexander County delegation walked out after a dispute over where offices of the five-county director of the program should be located.

At the same time, Ray Meisenheimer, who has been employed as director-coordinator of the Alexander County Community Action program, announced that he had resigned, effective immediately.

Meisenheimer's resignation was submitted before the Wednesday meeting and he said that he had agreed to attend the Vienna meeting and continued to guide efforts to organize the five-county program until a replacement could be secured. Meisenheimer had been paid a salary of $100 per week by the City of Cairo while serving as director-coordinator of the program.

He said the Vienna meeting had progressed nicely until the matter of location of the director's office arose.

"Cairo authorized our delegation to offer at no cost to the program a suite of two offices, equipped with furniture, utilities supplied, a janitor service, and air conditioning," Meisenheimer said. "The only other location offered was an abandoned school building at Karnak that would have to be equipped with utilities and renovated before it could be used as an office."

Pulaski, Union, Johnson, and Massac counties all voted to locate the office in the Karnak building and it was at this point the Alexander County delegation left the meeting.

Meisenheimer said it now appeared the Shawnee Development Council would not be organized as a five-county unit. He gave no indication about what course would be pursued in the future.

This was the third meeting of the five county group to organize into a regional unit. Some progress was made in the two previous meetings, although undercurrents of dissension over location of the director's office were detected in the meeting held in Cairo last Friday.

"We had been instructed by our county Community Action Committee to stand fast for having the director's office located here," Meisenheimer said. "We feel it should be located in the center of the poverty stricken area and past experience has proved that when offices are located further upstate, we receive only limited benefits."

He pointed out that 25 percent of the population in Alexander County was classified as poverty stricken, and that 26 per cent of Pulaski County was in this classification.

In comparison, only four per cent of Union County, seven per cent of Johnson County, and nine per cent of Massac County, are in this classification.

Members of the Alexander County delegation expressed surprise that the Pulaski County delegation did not offer a site for the office or support the Alexander County offer, since these two counties contain the vast majority of people on poverty rolls in the five-county area.

What effect this disruption of the Shawnee Development Council would have on processing of proposals submitted for approval by the individual counties could not be immediately determined.

Valuation Rises In New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- New Madrid County's valuation is within one tenth of one per cent of the 1964 valuation for tax purposes, according to Jesse H. Wilkins, County Clerk. Wilkins has received certification from the State Tax Commission approving the values for 1965, as turned in by Assessor, Preston Utterback.

Real estate values are down $600,000, and personal values are down some $370,000, while the merchants and manufacturers values were upped by $2000, and railroads and utilities increased by $870,000.

County Rep. Gene Copeland and County Clerk Wilkins teamed up put the brakes on annual increases on farm lands and city lots by furnishing the State Tax Commission with statistics from 1951 to 1964 on increases given New Madrid County.

It was shown by their statistics that farm lands had increased in value by 153% over the 14-year period for tax purposes, which was an average increase of 10.99% per year for 14 years. It was further shown that even though the population had decreased by more than 25% that personal property values for tax purposes had held its own and had been increased by 22%.

Apparently the State Tax Commission, with some new members on the Commission, feels inclined to agree that New Madrid County values have increased sufficiently to meet the 30% of actual value, at least for the time being.

With the new values certified to the clerk, the County Court proceeded to make the tax levies for 1965, and with the state tax being lowered to 6 cents from 7 cents, the Court set the same rates for county purposes as for the prior year; namely county revenue 40¢, johnson grass control 5¢, library 10¢, health center 10¢, and road and bridge 30¢, all rates being based on $100,00 valuation. The average school rate is $2.73.

The various school tax rates furnished the County Clerk are: Sikeston R-6 $4, up 16¢; Dogwood R-2 $3.40, up $1.40; Portageville R-1 $2.85, no change; Risco R-2 $2.20, no change; Parma R-3 $2.50, up 5¢; Lilbourn R-4 $2.50, no change; Matthews R-5 $2.50, no change; New Madrid R - 6 $3.00, no change; Morehouse C-12 $2.95, up 2¢; Gideon 37 $3.00, no change; and Higgerson 24 $1.10, up 5 cents.

Johnson Dominates American Scene

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In all the political dreams of his life President Johnson probably never imagined anything like this: dominating the American scene with no real opposition in sight.

Johnson last year and President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936 won tremendous election victories and their Democrats, riding their coattails, got overwhelming control of Congress both times.

But Johnson has been shrewder than Roosevelt in the use he made of success and luck, for he had a little better luck than Roosevelt: the Republican party was split in the 1964 election and still is.

Now the divided Republicans are hardly any opposition to him. Even their criticisms are barely audible.

When they do take after him occasionally, as on his handling of the Vietnamese war, it's not because of American involvement but because they want him to bomb harder.

This is a lot different from President Harry S. Truman's experience with the Korean war when, shortly after the United States got into it in 1950, Republicans opened up on him and kept on going.

Since his 1964 election Johnson has carefully done nothing to bristle Democrats or Republicans. In fact, except for a minor thrust once in a while, Johnson has been almost benevolent toward Republicans.

He pulls the strings on this Congress, letting nothing interfere with his determination to shove through what he wants. The result: Congress is running up one of its most impressive records.

With Roosevelt it was different. After his great win in 1936, he wrecked any chance for a stunning performance with his Democratic-run Congress by opening war on the Supreme Court.

That highly conservative court had been throwing out one important New Deal program after another. And on Feb. 7, 1937, less than three weeks after the new Congress took over, Roosevelt opened fire.

He sent a bill to the Capitol proposing drastic court reform, the so-called "court-packing" plan. He instantly ran into fierce dissent in all directions, including Democrats.

That 1937 Congress — unlike this one where Johnson keeps the machinery oiled for speed and performance — got tangled up for months over Roosevelt's proposal and then, in July, rejected it.

While Roosevelt lost this battle, he didn't lose the war. The court, apparently rendered self-conscious by the attacks by Roosevelt and others, switched and began upholding New Deal measures.

In May 1937, three months after Roosevelt began the fight, the court upheld the constitutionality of Social Security, one of the most revolutionary and far-reaching of all the New Deal programs.

But in Congress the court brawl and other dissensions so hampered legislation that in August 1937 it quit without having passed any major measure. In short, Roosevelt didn't handle it well at all.

When Roosevelt won the 1936 election by a landslide it was against a progressive but vague Republican, Alfred M. Landon, whose party was left shattered but not split.

But, luckily for Johnson, after his triumph over the highly conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater in 1964, the Republicans were left both shattered and split. And Johnson has taken full advantage of that.

Identical Twins Operating Restaurant

By Leo Schade

Patrons of the Cyrus restaurant have learned not to be alarmed if they think they are seeing double.

One of the city's most unusual business partnerships is that of the 43-year-old identical Caskey twins, Wendell and Lowell, who own the restaurant. They were born Sept. 24, 1921 in Lenox, Iowa.

It is confusing at times. One of the brothers, recently reunited as owners of the business, may be at the manager's desk. Then he moves to another part of the restaurant. A customer may be confused when he sees another man of identical appearance in another place there only to discover that the second man is the twin brother of the first.

The Caskeys grew up together in Iowa. They always were in the same class in school. They entered the navy's air corps and were commissioned ensigns together. They married in a double wedding ceremony. Their brides lived 20 miles apart in Iowa.

In the years that they were separated, it always was their ambition to go into business together. They have now realized this hope.

Since their marriage March 7, 1944, both have spent time together at intervals. They were instructors at the Malden air-base. Wendell Caskey and his family moved to Sikeston 11 years alo. Lowell Caskey and his family followed. The two men commuted to Malden until the base closed in 1958.

The Wendell Caskeys remained here. He was manager of the Robinson Lumber Company.

Lowell Caskey and his family went to Kansas City where he took a job with the Federal Aviation Agency. There he remained until a few weeks ago.

When one of the twins decided to enlist in the navy air corps his twin brother was ordered to go to another branch of service. Their mother interceded. She prevailed on authorities to let both enter the naval air force.

The twins IQ's were so similar that they were commissioned at the same time. A few hours later they were married in a double wedding ceremony. Lowell married a Bedford girl, and Wendell married a Mt. Ayr girl.

Lowell remained at the Pensacola airbase as an instructor, and Wendell went to the Pacific war theater. The two left the service within a month of each other.

Wendell Caskey has been owner and operator of Cyrus for five years. He and his wife have five children, Lynette, 20, a student at Memphis State, Jimmie, 18, who will enter the Navy, Andy, 13, Wendy Ann 8, and Cathy 4. The family lives at 924 North Ranney.

Lowell Caskey and his wife have three children, Dick, 20; Dianne, 17; and Debbie 4. They have moved to 918 Allen Blvd.

Johnson Dominates American Scene

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In all the political dreams of his life President Johnson probably never imagined anything like this: dominating the American scene with no real opposition in sight.

Johnson last year and President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936 won tremendous election victories and their Democrats, riding their coattails, got overwhelming control of Congress both times.

But Johnson has been shrewder than Roosevelt in the use he made of success and luck, for he had a little better luck than Roosevelt: the Republican party was split in the 1964 election and still is.

Now the divided Republicans are hardly any opposition to him. Even their criticisms are barely audible.

When they do take after him occasionally, as on his handling of the Vietnamese war, it's not because of American involvement but because they want him to bomb harder.

This is a lot different from President Harry S. Truman's experience with the Korean war when, shortly after the United States got into it in 1950, Republicans opened up on him and kept on going.

Since his 1964 election Johnson has carefully done nothing to bristle Democrats or Republicans. In fact, except for a minor thrust once in a while, Johnson has been almost benevolent toward Republicans.

He pulls the strings on this Congress, letting nothing interfere with his determination to shove through what he wants. The result: Congress is running up one of its most impressive records.

With Roosevelt it was different. After his great win in 1936, he wrecked any chance for a stunning performance with his Democratic-run Congress by opening war on the Supreme Court.

That highly conservative court had been throwing out one important New Deal program after another. And on Feb. 7, 1937, less than three weeks after the new Congress took over, Roosevelt opened fire.

He sent a bill to the Capitol proposing drastic court reform, the so-called "court-packing" plan. He instantly ran into fierce dissent in all directions, including Democrats.

That 1937 Congress — unlike this one where Johnson keeps the machinery oiled for speed and performance — got tangled up for months over Roosevelt's proposal and then, in July, rejected it.

While Roosevelt lost this battle, he didn't lose the war. The court, apparently rendered self-conscious by the attacks by Roosevelt and others, switched and began upholding New Deal measures.

In May 1937, three months after Roosevelt began the fight, the court upheld the constitutionality of Social Security, one of the most revolutionary and far-reaching of all the New Deal programs.

But in Congress the court brawl and other dissensions so hampered legislation that in August 1937 it quit without having passed any major measure. In short, Roosevelt didn't handle it well at all.

When Roosevelt won the 1936 election by a landslide it was against a progressive but vague Republican, Alfred M. Landon, whose party was left shattered but not split.

But, luckily for Johnson, after his triumph over the highly conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater in 1964, the Republicans were left both shattered and split. And Johnson has taken full advantage of that.

The Kiwanis Club: How It All Came About

Considering its present high status in the community, Kiwanis was started for less than lofty ideals. In 1915 a Detriot salesman named Allen Browne, a one-time organizer for the Moose, decided to found his own fraternal club for businessmen with the lure of sick benefits. Browne's motivation undoubtedly was singular: He would keep the $5 fee he charged members to join.

Browne considered naming the organization the Benevolent Order Of Brothers, until someone pointed out the unfortunate meaning of the initials. The club members then asked a Detroit historian, Clarence M. Burton, to select a more appropriate name. He picked a phrase from the Otchipew Indian dialect, Nun-Kee-wan-nis, which he said meant: "We make a noise. We have a good time."

As Kiwanis's purposes expanded beyond those of merely a fraternal group, its members decided that the definition didn't do them justice, and the Indian phrase was translated liberally as "self-expression." The Kiwanis motto of "We Trade was revised to "We Build."

In 1916 Kiwanis sponsored a convention and elected George F. Hixon of Rochester as its first president. Allen Browne in the meantime prospered, having raised the initiation fee first to $10, then to $15. However, in selecting men for his club, he chose top community leaders, who didn't want merely to meet, eat, burp, and adjourn but instead were interested in community activities - and eventually in removing Browne. At a convention at Birmingham in 1919, the delegates voted to obtain control of their own organization.

"How much do you want?" they asked Browne.

"I'll take $17,500," he replied, and he wanted it "tomorrow." The 200 men attending the convention reached into their pockets or went to the bank to sign notes. Within 24 hours Browne had his money and the men had their club.

Rotary has a special room, almost a shrine, dedicated to the memory of its founder, Paul Harris. In the Kiwanis general office in Chicago you can't even find a photograph of Allen Browne.
